NEW CANADIAN TRADE OFFER TO BRITAIN

Reported Hitler May Be German Chancellor Soon

President von Hindenburg Stated Now to Be Inclining Toward Inviting National Socialist Chief to Form Cabinet

NAZI TROOPS MASS AT SEVERAL POINTS

Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 10.—Adolf Hitler, head of the powerful National Socialist Party, loomed more prominently than ever to-day as President von Hindenburg's choice for Chancellor of Germany.

Chancellor Franz von Papen reported the political situation to the President this afternoon when the aged field marshall returned from his summer estate at Neudeck. There was evidence the President was wavering in his previous determination to maintain a non-partisan cabinet.

The facts of the situation were laid before him and on the basis of these facts the President was reported as inclining now toward asking Hitler to form a cabinet.

NAZI TROOPS MASSING

Thousands of Hitler's Nazi storm troops were reported concentrating to-day in the vicinity of Berlin and central Germany. The Nazi commander himself was understood to be ready to lay down a final demand for the right to lead the German Government.

"All or nothing!" is the reply Hitler was understood to have made to Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, Defence Minister, when asked for a statement on his attitude.

Two men were killed and a number injured in a string of battles yesterday evening, on the heels of the publication of yesterday's drastic decree authorizing the death penalty for many acts of disorder.

GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT

Berlin, Aug. 10 (Associated Press).—Unemployment in Germany during the second two weeks of July decreased 99,000 to a total of 5,393,000.

Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Lands, was expected to attend the meeting to discuss a permanent policy in respect to log experts, but he was called out of the city and was unable to be present.

Steel, But Not Textiles, Included In Ottawa's Proposal At Conference

Canadian Delegation at Empire Assembly Offers to Scale Down Tariff on Steel in Favor of British

Other Dominions' Plans Advanced

Reported Conferees Expect to Complete Their Task Within Ten Days

By A. G. Dexter, Special Dispatch to The Times

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Three days of Imperial Conference deadlock terminated this morning when the Bennett Government came forward with a new proposal to Great Britain—a proposal to take the place of the first Bennett offer, which was summarily rejected by the British delegation.

In this second offer, Canada meets the British demand for real concessions on iron and steel exports to this Dominion. Instead of the first policy of preserving the iron and steel industry without new competition and attempting to divert present imports from the United States to Britain, the Canadian Government is now prepared to pull down the iron and steel tariff to give British mills a fair break in the Canadian market.

TEXTILE TRADE

Whether this second offer will be accepted by the British remains to be seen. Hitherto Britain has insisted on obtaining substantial concessions, not only on iron and steel, but also on textiles, and it is on textiles the Canadian Ministry hitherto has declined to agree to any reduction of existing tariffs.

A bird's-eye view of the conference now in its third week, reveals the difference between Canada and Great Britain as the hurdle in the way of complete success. Britain has refused to embargo Russia, but has agreed to grant the Dominions tariff preferences on wheat, meats, tobacco, canned fish, base metals, lumber and other primary products. Failing an embargo against Russia, the Canadian delegates fear preferences would be rather meaningless, particularly as Britain also reserves the right to extend them to such good customers as Denmark and Argentina. Other dominions, however, are satisfied with the arrangement and have agreed in return to make substantial tariff reductions in favor of British manufactures. Thus it is now clear that treaties between Britain and every dominion save Canada can be reached.

LONG VIEW OF TRADES URGED

London Newspapers, Discussing Ottawa Conference, Ask British to Look Forward

Empire Conference Developments Watched With Keenest Interest in Britain

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—A dispatch to The Vancouver Daily Province to-day from Lukin Johnston, its special correspondent in London, reads as follows:

A haunting fear that failure of Canada and Great Britain to achieve a substantial measure of economic unity at Ottawa may spell the doom of a united empire and force Canada to gravitate more and more toward the United States is making itself felt here in these critical days of the conference. If to most Canadians this may seem an old bogey which was laid by the heels as long ago as 1911, it should be realized that in the view of certain sections of the British people it presents the only alternative for Canada if stronger consolidation with the empire fails.

There has been much talk from time to time of the dominance of United States capital in Canadian industry, fostered often by those who little understand Canadian industrial conditions. The immense sacrifices Canada has made in the past in order to maintain her individuality and British connections have not always been fully appreciated here.

The Morning Post says:

"There is no sacrifice this country is asked to make, it is declared, comparable to the loss and injury it would have to face if this conference ended in failure."

Other Conservative newspapers take a similar line when they urge Britain should take the long view and not be too closely concerned with the immediate cash value of this concession or that gain.

Lord Rothermere's London Daily Mail asks the British delegates to realize that for future generations, Canada, with her vast area and immense natural resources, has almost limitless prospects of expansion in population and wealth.

"A century hence Canada may well be superior in population to Britain herself," says The Mail. "Never was there a stronger case for generous action on Britain's part."

These views demonstrate the tense interest which is now concentrated on the negotiations between Canada and Britain. The thought of failure appals the majority of British people and the disposition is to keep clearly in mind the long-distance view rather than allow immediate possibilities of a minor loss or gain to jeopardize the success of the conference.

TRIAL ENDS IN DISMISSAL

Plaintiff in New Westminster Fails to Identify Accused Man in Lineup

Canadian Press

New Westminster, Aug. 10.—The charge of conspiracy to defraud laid against Mike Snatynchuk was dismissed to-day in the City Police Court by Magistrate H. L. Edmonds.

The man was charged as an alleged member of a confidence gang which robbed Thomas E. Austin of Victoria of $3,500 in this city last May. Harry Sullivan, counsel for the accused, in asking dismissal of the case, said the whole question was one of identification.

When the plaintiff was given a fair opportunity in a police line-up to pick out the man known to him as John Furman, he failed to do so. Later when Austin passed Snatynchuk in a darkened corridor near the courtroom the former claimed the accused was the man Furman.

Sullivan pointed out that with the abolition of grand juries a greater responsibility rested on the magistrate in dealing with preliminary hearings for the prosecution.

Magistrate Edmonds, in dismissing the case, said there was no chance of obtaining a conviction in a higher court. Austin had himself to blame if he had not availed himself of the opportunity to make a thorough investigation during the line-up.

In the other two quarter final matches, J. A. Byerly, Portland, 1930 champion, defeated A. S. Kerry, Seattle, 1 up after a keen match, and J. M. Insurance Man's Pipe Blows Up

Canadian Press

Calgary, Aug. 10.—"Why, you never know when something will happen," declared an insurance man in a restaurant here yesterday while urging a prospective client to take out a policy.

"No, sir," repeated the high pressure agent, "you never can tell when something will happen."

An explosion occurred about that time. The insurance man's pipe flew out of his mouth and part of the restaurant ceiling was damaged. Nobody was injured, but it was some time before the agent thought of insurance.

It seems the insurance man had been out hunting. He had placed bullets in his tobacco pouch and unknowingly filled his pipe with a mixture of bullets and tobacco.

"Something" happened when he lit the pipe. A bullet passed his nose and lodged in the ceiling.

CASHIER'S LIFE IS THREATENED

But Thug in Vancouver Warning of Explosion, Leaves Bottle and Runs Away

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—"Hand over the money or you'll be blown up."

This order greeted Mrs. G. E. McDonald, cashier at the North Vancouver ferry ticket office at the foot of Columbia Avenue, in a note which was pushed across the counter to her yesterday evening by a roughly-dressed man.

The would-be bandit warned Mrs. McDonald a bottle he had in his hand contained a high explosive and ordered her to act quickly. Then, apparently frightened, he left the bottle on the counter and ran.

Police were called and the note and bottle were handed to them. Contents of the bottle were being analyzed to-day.

Sandy Somerville, Defending Champion, and Bobby Smith in Great Battle

Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, Aug. 10.—Sandy Somerville, London, and slim young Bobby Reith, Winnipeg, were staging a titanic battle over the hills of Lambton to-day for the right to continue in the hunt for the Canadian amateur golf title the Londoner now holds.

After the morning half of their second round thirty-six-hole match, Somerville had the seventeen-year-old Manitoba champion 1 down, but he had to uncork many brilliant holes of play to sneak into the lead.

First one and then the other forged into the lead as the round progressed. Silent Sandy took the first three holes, a pair of them with birdies, while Bobby was suffering from nerves and fluffing short shots. But from there on the westerner had control of his war clubs. At the eleventh Somerville had taken a 2-up lead. Bobby steadied, lashed out a birdie two in the 130-yard twelfth, and took the next pair to go 1 up.

Lake Holds Bodies of Boat Accident Victims

Dragging Operations at Shawnigan For Pair Drowned in Mishap

Double Tragedy Casts Gloom Over Holiday Campers at Summer Resort

Despite an intensive search by police, reinforced by volunteers from camps and summer homes, the bodies of Wilfred (Buzz) Francis and Marjorie Gilliland, victims of yesterday's drowning tragedy at Shawnigan Lake, had not been recovered up to an early hour this afternoon.

Many Victorians staying in summer homes at the lake were stunned by the sudden double tragedy. Both Mr. Francis and Miss Gilliland were very popular among the campers there and had a host of friends in the city.

The tragic nature of the accident was increased by the knowledge that both of the victims could swim. Wilfred had won laurels in swimming meets and Miss Gilliland was a fair swimmer. This led to the belief that one or both of them were injured when thrown from their swerving speedboat in front of the Shawnigan Lake mill. Eye-witnesses said when first precipitated from the boat they were separated, but were later seen close together and then disappeared, indicating that one may have been drowned attempting to save the other.

The two victims were members of well-known Victoria families. Wilfred, who was to have celebrated his twenty-first birthday to-day, is survived by the father, F. W. Francis, jeweler, and member of the Gizeh Shrine Temple, and mother; one brother, Hubert, and two sisters, Betty and Veronica. Betty was in the boat at the time, but clung to the side and was rescued.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gilliland, 1321 Johnson Street, where the parents of Marjorie, who is also survived by two brothers, Harry, in Victoria, and Gordon, in Vancouver; and five sisters, Effie, Tressie, Mabel, Helen and Clare. Marjorie was nineteen years of age in June, and was employed in her father's real estate office.

Provincial Police Constables S. Service and A. Lashair from Duncan took charge of the dragging operations, assisted by Constable J. Blackstock of the city force, who was at the lake on holiday, and volunteers. Dynamite was used yesterday evening and this morning without success.

Seattle, Aug. 10.—In the pockets of the coat of eighty-one-year-old John Stonebanks when he dropped dead in the Public Library here yesterday were found a crust of bread and a shriveled apple core. His clothes were soiled and ragged.

The body was taken to the public morgue, where seven bank books were found in the clothing, showing deposits in seven Seattle banks. In the room in which he had lived a will was discovered leaving his estate to five nieces, two in British Columbia and three in London, England.

Stonebanks had lived here for forty-fiveyears.

Declare Conference Not One-man Affair

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 10—Denial was made in Imperial Conference circles to-day of newspaper reports that Premier Bennett was attempting to dominate the conference and also his own cabinet. It was not a "one-man conference," was the statement.

The Prime Minister of Canada not only was not attempting to dictate to his own ministers as to the running of their departments but he was not trying to run the conference, it was said. Statements that Mr. Bennett was attempting to run the conference were characterized as "stupid."

Wheat Strengthens On Winnipeg Market

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Bullish enthusiasm, which had shown signs of flagging, was reborn to-day as wheat prices swept up to almost wipe out deep setbacks of yesterday. Spurred on by the pronounced strength of stock markets and substantial purchases of wheat overseas, wheat closed the day's trading 1⅛ cents a bushel higher.

Advices from abroad indicated millers were back in the market as purchasers of wheat and approximately 500,000 bushels was contracted for. Strength at Liverpool and further gains in securities gave early support to the market and the advance was easily held.

The close on wheat was as follows: October, 61⅛; December, 62⅜, and May, 66⅜.

Rightists Fighting Troops In Spain

Government Forces Operate Against Rebels in Several Districts; Reported Rebels Wish Monarchy Restored

Canadian Press and Associated Press Dispatches

Madrid, Aug. 10. — Rebellion flared in four Spanish cities today, resulting in at least seven deaths in Madrid during an attack at dawn on the building which houses the Ministry of War and the office of the Premier.

The General Workers' Union warned all Socialist members to be ready to fight in defence of the republic.

This Philosopher Lives Underground

Canadian Press

Pine Orchard, Ont., Aug. 10.—Ryland Carrier, philosopher, sometimes disrespectfully called "Jimmy the Groundhog," emerged from his underground dwelling to-day to say to the world, "I told you so."

Four years ago, Carrier, coming here from the United States, predicted a general depression, and said the only recourse for working men was to get back to the land. Accordingly he dug an underground home near here, and has lived there happily ever since, despite the taunts of wisecrackers.

"If workmen in the cities had done as I did four years ago, and had gone back to the land, from which all wealth springs, the depression would not now be worrying them as it is," said Jimmie to-day. "The man on the land can hold out longer against present economic conditions.

"I am a capitalist in my underground home, no worse off than four years ago, when the rest of the world was enjoying a fool's paradise of prosperity."

DUNCAN ASKS PENSIONS CUT

City Council Advocates Reduction and Limitation of Mothers' Pensions

Special to The Times

Duncan, Aug. 10.—Drastic reductions in the scale of payments under the Mothers' Pensions Act, with restriction of eligibility to British subjects and exclusion of Asiatics from benefits, will be urged upon the Provincial Government by the Duncan City Council.

The city council discussed the cost of mothers' pensions at considerable length on Monday evening, when accounts from the provincial government were presented for the city's share of payments made to mothers in Duncan.

The council passed the following resolution: "Resolved, that the provincial government be urged to review, at the earliest possible moment, the whole of the conditions under which Mothers' Pensions are being granted, with a view to:

"A general reduction in the scale:

"That such pensions be made applicable to British subjects only, the same as is at present the case with old age pensions;

"That no Asiatic be eligible for such pensions."

The council also received a list of names of patients at the provincial mental hospital, for whom the city will be required to contribute.

Receipt of $782 for last winter's relief work was reported, the payment being on federal account. Expenditure in Duncan for unemployment relief totaled $3,940.89, of which $2,208.84 has been repaid by the two governments.

The council passed a vote of thanks to J. A. Kennedy, superintendent of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, for his prompt action in preventing a wood yard being started on a downtown spur of the railway.

PREFERENCES ON MUCH TRADE

Figures Given at Ottawa Sum Up Operation of Empire System

Ottawa, Aug. 10. — Preferences granted by Canada to empire countries amounted to $30,000,000 during the year ended March 31, 1931, according to a preliminary trade report issued yesterday. This was estimated as the difference between the duty collected under the preferential tariff and what would have been collected under a general tariff. The difference between the preference and treaty tariff would have been $6,000,000 less.

Total empire imports for the year under the preferential tariff amounted to $141,588,195. The duty collected amounted to $19,125,220, at an average al valorem rate of 13.5 per cent. The estimated duty for this volume under a treaty tariff would have been $42,849,988, and under a general tariff $49,202,030. Of the total imports goods valued at $37,151,606 entered Canada free.

The great bulk of these imports came from the United Kingdom, the total being $95,365,805, of which $18,288,422 represented free imports. Duty collected on United Kingdom imports amounted to $15,437,744. Under a treaty tariff this would have been $23,737,060, and under a general tariff $28,982,152.

The next largest exporter to Canada, the British West Indies, sent goods valued at $13,363,762, of which $8,745,705 was dutiable, bringing a revenue of $1,366,476. Under a treaty tariff this would have been $7,072,931, and under a general tariff $7,147,446.

of the course. They went to lunch all square with 74 each.

The in-journey proved difficult for young Gordon Taylor of Montreal, and the four-up margin he held over Don Carrick, towering Toronto player, at the turn, was reduced to two holes at the eighteenth.

Phil Farley, Toronto, outputted Stan Leonard, Vancouver, on the home trip after standing all square at the turn and looked headed for a comfortable margin for the morning round. But on the sixteenth the young British Columbia champion got himself a birdie three on the 450-yarder, and then laid his opponent a stymie on the seventeenth for another win to leave the easterner but 1 up at the end of the first half of the day's chase.

Jack Cameron, sturdy Toronto veteran, and E. A. Innes, Montreal, played the best golf of the parade leaders. The Montreal Scot was one stroke better in the approximate medal score, having 73 to Cameron's 74, and he finished the morning tour 1 up.

Fred Hoblitzel, a veteran playing over his home course, went to lunch all square with W. E. Hart, Toronto.

In a tilt between two of the three Americans remaining, Will Gunn Jr., Wallingford, Pa., stroked around in even par to leave Joe Bydolek, Buffalo, N.Y., six holes down.

RYAN IS UP

One of the three United States contenders remaining in the chase, Francis Ryan, Detroit stylist, was outdistancing T. G. Meathey, Montreal, from the tee and through the fairway, and at the end of the morning play the American was 4 up.

SENATE ALTERS U.B.C. COURSES

Staff Cuts Have Necessitated Changes; Fewer and Larger Classes

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 10. — Radical readjustments in the courses of the Faculties and Arts and Agriculture of the University of British Columbia have been announced following a meeting of the University Senate. No change was made in the engineering courses in the faculty of applied science.

Many courses in arts and agriculture will be dropped because of the reduction in the teaching staff, according to the statement, but a policy of discontinuing the least essential courses has been followed. The work of junior professors, who have been dismissed, will be taken over by the senior professors and lectures will be given to larger classes than formerly.

Graduate work, honor courses and the Department of Commerce will be retained, it was decided by the Senate, but reductions in choice of studies will be enforced. There will be less supervision by the faculty and more independent work by the students.

"It is anticipated," reads the statement, "that the students will rise to the occasion and maintain the high quality of work, not only in the pass but also in the honors courses, even where there is a considerable restriction in the range of subjects available."

The senate considered the need for trained technical men for the development of the natural resources of the province and extension of its basal industries so great that the Faculty of Applied Science was left intact.

Hillcrest Lumber Company Ceased Operations Near Duncan To-day

Special to The Times

Duncan, Aug. 10.—The Hillcrest Lumber Company closed down their Swedish sawmill this morning, after completion of an order for British markets. C. Stone, manager, is expected to return from the east shortly and operations will not be resumed prior to his return.

In addition to releasing the men employed in the samill, stoppage of work at Hillcrest has terminated employment for a number of loggers, who have been working in the company's limits to supply the mill.

The large standard cut mill has been closed down for some time.

SAY CABINET NOT DIVIDED

Ottawa Leaders State Suggestions in British Papers Have No Foundation

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—In connection with the Imperial Conference denial was given to-day to reports of divisions in the Canadian cabinet. "There is not and has not been any threatened break-up of the cabinet," it was authoritatively stated. "Proposals submitted to the conference had the approval of the whole cabinet."

The denial was directed at reports that a split had occurred in the Canadian cabinet as to the extent of preferences Canada should offer Great Britain. The cabinet was as united as any cabinet every was, it was stated. That there was no suggestion of a split, or resignations, was the assurance from Canadian authorities.

Suggestions of a division in the cabinet at Ottawa have appeared in British newspapers, chief among them The London Times.

PRAIRIE BONDS ARE TAKEN UP

Saskatchewan's $2,000,000 Bond Issue Taken By Dealer Subscription

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Saskatchewan's new bond issue of $2,000,000 six per cent bonds was fully taken up to-day by dealer subscription, it was announced. The issue was offered this morning by a syndicate of investment bankers at a price of 98¼ to yield 6.15 per cent. The proceeds will be used to retire short-term notes maturing in New York on December 1.

Payable in Canadian funds only, the issue will mature on March 15, 1952. It was the prairie province's second issue this year. $4,000,000 6 per cent bonds having been sold in March at a price of 94.45 to yield 6½ per cent.

FUR EXCHANGE REORGANIZED

Seattle Organization Names R. E. Lang as President; H. Wagner Is Manager

Seattle, Aug. 10.—Reorganization of the Seattle Fur Exchange was announced yesterday with the naming of R. E. Lang of Seattle, as president, and L. H. Black, also of Seattle, as vice-president.

Mr. Lang announced later that new capital had been invested in the exchange and that Henry Wagner, a widely experienced fur merchant, had been appointed general manager.

COPPER REACTIONARY

New York, Aug. 10 (Associated Press)—Copper prices abroad showed some reactionary tendencies to-day. Copper Exporters Inc. was offering metal for foreign shipment at 5.45 cents a pound, but sales were made from other source at 5.40 cents, compared with 5.45 and 5.50 cents yesterday. The domestic market was quiet and most producers and custom smelters were holding at 5½ cents a pound.

"At that time I told them I was interested only in what Chubbie (Mrs. Keith-Miller) thought about it, and not at all in what Haden thought," he testified.

Fernando de los Rios, speaking for the cabinet, confirmed the report that Gen. Sanjurgo had taken control of Seville and that he also was sin control of the smaller town of Jerez de la Frontera, to the south of Seville in the province of Cadiz.

UPRISING IN ALGECIRAS

Reports from Algeciras said the 15th regiment of the army was involved in the mutiny there and that the Spanish consul-general at Gibsaltar was said to be implicated in the movement.

Senor de los Rios said he had received private information that Gen. San Jurgo had proclaimed himself captain-general of Andalusia and had taken over all the public offices in Seville.

OPPOSING SOCIALISTS

On the basis of information at hand, it appeared the movement was an uprising of Conservative Republicans, aided by Monarchists, Communists and certain extremists, all opposed to the socialist preponderance in the government.

Some political authorities said there was no doubt the rebellion was intended as a stepping stone to restoration of the monarchy, probably under ex-Prince Juan, younger son of the deposed, Alfonso XIII.

FIGHT AT SEVILLE

Reports from Seville, in the southwest, said a rebel force under Gen. Sanjurgo, had captured the Communications building. From Algeciras, in the south, near Gibraltar, reports said an army detachment had mutinied in the nearby town of Lalines. The naval garrison at Cartagena, on the southeast coast, also was reported to have mutinied.

Communication with outlying cities was impossible.

REBELS REPULSED

Madrid police, under the command of Director of Public Safety Menedez, repulsed the attack on the Ministry of War, spraying the open square with machine gun bullets.

Seven were killed and about a dozen wounded on both sides during that engagement. Ninety arrests were made, but only thirty-six of the prisoners were civilians. Among the others were Gen. Jose Cavalcanti, Gen. Emilio Frenandez Perez and Gen. Gonsales Garrasco.

Of those killed in Madrid three were policemen and two rebels. Four of the attackers and three policemen were wounded, two of the former dying later.

The attack, which broke out at dawn, was put down after more than an hour of intermittent fighting, during which the Cibeles Plaza and adjoining streets were raked by machine gun fire.

EX-DUKE'S SON ARRESTED

London, Aug. 10.—A dispatch from Madrid to Reuter's News Agency said that among those arrested following this morning's revolt were the son of a former royal duke, the son of Gen. Milan del Bosch, former chief of the household under King Alfonso XIII. and two captains of infantry.

London, Aug. 10.—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Madrid to-day said Gen. Rodriguez Perez and a number of other army officers were arrested in the upper story of a building, the lower part of which was occupied by the Cuban legation, following the riots this morning.

A quantity of arms was captured in the precinct of the general post office, it was said.

New Canadian Trade Offer to Britain

The difficulty between Britain and Canada arises because the Canadian delegation, in its first offer, did not propose any substantial reductions in tariff rates against Britain, but did propose, by increasing the tariff against the United States, to divert present imports, chiefly iron and steel, from that country to Britain. But Britain does not desire to profit at the expense of foreign countries, she may meet at a subsequent world economic conference and in rejecting the Canadian offer the London delegation said Canada must give real concessions in the Canadian market on iron, steel and textiles. The Bennett government has now met this demand so far as iron and steel is concerned, and it remains to be seen if Britain will insist on textiles. If so it is reported in some quarters that a split in the Bennett ministry may develop. Despite statements to the contrary, the ministry is sharply divided on the issue of the textile tariffs, and reconciliation of view seems difficult. Meantime Mr. Bennett is being hammered by the rank and file of his own party, to maintain the tariff, as exemplified in a flaming leading editorial this morning in The Montreal Gazette, which continues its high protection campaign.

This morning, Premier Bennett again met some of the British representatives and discussed the situation. No definite conclusions were reached. The discussions were continued this afternoon. Progress in every way was authoritatively reported. Desire was shown on both sides to accomplish something definite, to secure a result that will be mutually satisfactory.

And, according to reports, even the experts to-day were sinking their differences over the value of Canada's offer to Great Britain. They held another joint meeting this forenoon. One suggestion before them, it is understood, was that they should agree to a mutual scrapping of figures and start all over again. One authoritative explanation of their difference of opinion was that they were apparently working from different years.

Negotiations between Great Britain and the other dominions are almost concluded. Great Britain, South Africa and Rhodesia are now working on their agreement. Between Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand announcement of accord is expected almost any time. Between Great Britain and India negotiations are almost equally advanced.

The conferees now expect to conclude within ten days.

Criticize Police On Liquor Prosecutions

Alberta Cabinet Members Say R.C.M.P. Lay Charges Under Excise Act Too Frequently and Under Provincial Liquor Control Act Too Seldom

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Aug. 10.—First known difference of opinion between the Alberta Attorney-General's department and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials at Ottawa has developed. The provincial government and the R.C.M.P. heads are "at odds" over the question of the laying of certain charges in connection with possession of illicit liquor by individuals.

"There is a feeling that too many liquor cases are being laid under the Dominion Excise Act, rather than under the Alberta Liquor Control Act," Premier J. E. Brownlee said in confirming a report he was sending a protest to the R.C.M.P. heads in Ottawa.

The provincial government's protest is based on a two-fold argument—first, that all liquor cases laid under the Excise Act send the fines, when collected, to Ottawa instead of to the provincial government, which is paying for the policing of the province, and secondly, that the Excise Act calls for exceedingly stiff fines in comparison with those provided for in the Alberta Liquor Control Act, and that in the present times a certain proportion could be very well laid under the provincial act, thereby lessening the punishment on individuals.

Hill said Bromley was back at work flying gold from mines in that region for the West Mexico Mines Company of Parral, Chihuahua.

The plane, Hill said, hit the side of a mountain.

Casualties in Big Floods Reported 3,000; Railway Paralyzed

Harbin, Manchuria, Aug. 10.—Approximately 3,000 persons have been reported missing as a result of floods in the Sungari River valley.

A number of large river towns, including Sanshin, were completely flooded and must be virtually reconstructed before they will be habitable again.

The southern branch of the Chinese Eastern Railway, Harbin's most important link with the outside world, was destroyed south of Shuangcheng and it will take a month to restore it.

Two-thirds of Harbin was flooded and the flood waters were coursing through the Kitaskaia, the city's main street.

NEW PLAN FOR INDIA SOON

British Ministry's Communal Award to Be Announced August 17

Canadian Press

Simla, India, Aug. 10.—The government of India yesterday announced the British government's communal award would be published in Great Britain and India August 17.

The communal award is the British government's provisional plan for settling the issue of rights and representation of Indian minorities under the proposed new Indian constitution.

It is the "imposed agreement" Premier MacDonald volunteered to take on himself in case the minorities committee of the recent India Round-table Conference could not agree at session in India after having failed in London.

The committee did fail to argee and the British government was asked to make its promised decision so the building of a constitution, hindered by the communal dispute, could proceed.

Municipal Elections Early In December

VIEWS DIFFER ON CONFERENCE

London Daily Herald, Telegraph and Express Comment on Ottawa Negotiations

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 10—A rather sharp contrast in their treatment of the present position at Ottawa was presented yesterday by The London Daily Herald, an organ of Labor opinion, and The London Daily Telegraph, Conservative.

The Herald editorially drew attention to the spectacle of Premier Bennett trying to pay the smallest possible price for the desired taxes on the food of the British people, while, on the other hand, the British leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, was trying to squeeze a little more out of the astute Canadian.

In his opening speech at Ottawa, added The Herald, Mr. Baldwin spoke of the need of lowering, not raising, the barriers to world trade, and his words found a warm welcome in Canada.

VALUES COMPARED

The Daily Telegraph declared the whole question was one of values. No secret was made, said the paper, that the value of the Canadian proposals had proved to have been very much overestimated.

"Nobody believes the Canadian proposals represented the government's last word," asserted The Daily Telegraph, "it may be hoped a position will now be rapidly reached very different from that which produced such lowering spirits at Ottawa last week."

BEAVERBROOK'S OPINION

"The situation at Ottawa has taken a distinct turn for the better," exclaimed Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express. "There is now every reason to believe a satisfactory understanding will be reached and the first general step toward Empire free trade accomplished.

The Daily Express asserted Mr. Bennett might be content to leave his fame for history to inscribe as the founder of a new empire.

North Vancouver Residents Suggest Change in Act to Benefit Municipalities

Canadian Press

North Vancouver, Aug. 10.—As the result of a resolution passed by the District Ratepayers' and Residents' Association, the three Burrard Inlet North Shore municipalities in an amendment to the Municipal Act whereby municipal elections would be held not later than the first week in December of each year instead of in the middle of January.

Those sponsoring the suggestion hold that with the elections conducted early in December, the new councils would be able to take over the reins January 1 and would be enabled to strike their tax rates much earlier, which would in turn result in earlier receipt of current taxes. This, it is contended, would obviate necessity of councils borrowing money from banks to carry on until the tax rates are struck and revenue begins to come in and the municipalities would save the interest on such temporary loans.

PLAN RELIEF CONFERENCE

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Aug. 10.—Following the inter-provincial conference on unemployment relief last week, Premier Brownlee yesterday wrote to Premier Bennett at Ottawa, conveying the request of the conference that the Alberta cabinet head should lay its findings before the Prime Minister and ask for an appointment at as early a date as possible.

It was generally felt at last week's meeting that the date for such an appointment could hardly be expected until after the Imperial Economic Conference. There is a possibility Mr. Bennett may come west to attend the Canadian Bar Association's annual meeting, which is to be held in Calgary next month, and in that event it may be arranged for the federal and provincial premiers to get together on unemployment relief somewhere in the west.

IRISH RAILWAY TROUBLES GROW

Canadian Press

Dublin, Aug. 10.—A warning that unless the Irish Free State should change its tariff policy the Great Southern Railways might have to close down was sounded yesterday by Sir Walter Nugent, chairman, at a special meeting of the shareholders.

The new $1 tax per ton on British coal came in for severe criticism. One representative shareholder attributed the immediate railway crisis to that tax, claiming British coal alone was suitable for the company's engines.

The railways, shareholders declared, could not submit to be financially penalized in order to help the political policy of the De Valera government.

Sir Walter Nugent, who has occupied high offices in several railway companies and was deputy governor of the Bank of Ireland, drew a gloomy picture of impending disaster.

The railways must be given relief by the control of freight traffic, relief from unfair road competition and relief from excessive costs of operation, he said. Otherwise they would have to be closed down or handed over to the government—which he thought would be disastrous for all concerned.

Cucumbers will lose every trace of poison if you follow this simple precaution. Cut the top from the cucumber. Then rub it firmly against the place from which it has been cut. The poison will come out in the form of soapy suds.

Octogenarian Goes Harvesting

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Penniless and eighty years of age, an optimistic traveler who arrived in Winnipeg yesterday from Bracebridge, Ont., visited the city hall to-day and said he had ridden the bumpers west in search of work in harvest fields. He was not exactly looking for a meal ticket at the city hall, he said. He just wanted to look in and talk to some of the folks.

A blacksmith by trade, he said he had never missed a meal in his life and did not expect to. He was sure he would find something to do in the west after the harvest.

REPRESENTATION CHANGE DEBATED

Canadian Press

Wellington, N.Z., Aug. 10.—Premier G. W. Forbes yesterday said he expected the British Government to raise the question of the Dominions' representation at London before the conclusion of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa.

This is regarded as a hint that New Zealand may change the form of its own representation at London when the term of the present high commissioner, Sir Thomas Wilford, expires in December.

Australia has already named Rt. Hon. Stanley M. Bruce, leader of its delegation at Ottawa, to be resident minister in London, while retaining his seat in the federal cabinet.

Davidson, Sask., Aug. 10.—A brother whom she had not seen for fifty-two years recently paid a visit to Mrs. Chris Arneson in the Elbow district.

MONEY CLUES TO ABDUCTORS FAIL

Halifax, Aug. 10.—A list of serial numbers of twenty, ten and five dollar United States bills deposited at the Bank of Nova Scotia branch in Alberta, N.B., and said to have been part of the money futilely paid as a ransom for the baby of Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, do not correspond to serial numbers furnished Canadian banks by the New Jersey police about three weeks ago.

The list of figures reported as those on the bills presented by Miss Carrie Anderson, a nurse of Hampton, Virginia, in Albert in comparison with the bankers' list showed great discrepancies both in figures and letters, according to a check made here.

FOUR DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Canadian Press

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 10.—Death in hospital here yesterday evening of Henry Binette of New Brittain, Conn., brought to four the death list in a highway accident. A car containing nine United States citizens, three of them children, overturned and caught fire following the bursting of a tire on the highway between Massawapi, Que., and Burroughs, Vt.

The others killed were Mrs. Delphine Leroux Binette, her four-year-old child, Aline, and Miss Jeanette Binette, sister-in-law.

CROPS ARE IN NEED OF RAIN

Spell of Hot, Dry Weather Causes Urgent Need of Rain in Saskatchewan

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 10—Rain is urgently needed over wide areas in Saskatchewan and parts of Alberta after another week of hot, dry weather in the prairie provinces, states the weekly crop report issued to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

During the past week there has been further deterioration in crops in Southern Saskatchewan and the yield in this area will be greatly reduced, the report says. Rains received at the present time would still benefit late-sown crops and would improve the feed situation. In other parts of Saskatchewan prospects continue from fair to good but rains would be beneficial to late crops and pastures.

In Manitoba the northern half of the wheat belt promises better than average yields but this condition is partially offset by recent deterioration in areas in the southern half of the province where the heat and drought have caused losses. The southwestern section of the province has suffered greatest damage.

HARVESTING IN FULL SWING

Regina, Aug. 10—Harvesting is in full swing in most sections of southern Saskatchewan to-day. Crops have ripened rapidly during the past two weeks, and lack of rain has reduced the yield to some extent. Elevator men estimate wheat will yield from twelve to fifteen bushels to the acre. Wheat-cutting is virtually completed in the Moosomin area. Wheat already delivered to elevators has graded No. 1 northern.

CANADA AND BRITAIN

NEWS FROM OTTAWA CLEARLY INDICATES that there is a sharp divergence of view between the Canadian and British delegations at the Imperial Economic Conference. Mr. Bennett says he is waiting to know what Mr. Baldwin intends to offer in return for the concessions Canada has made in her proposal. Until he does so the Canadian Prime Minister does not think he ought to be accused of holding up this part of the business. On the other hand, Mr. Baldwin claims Canada's offer is not nearly as valuable to Great Britain as Mr. Bennett says it is. British newspapers shift the blame for delay on to Mr. Bennett, but it seems clear enough that the British delegation has not been as explicit in presenting its case as Mr. Bennett has been. It should hardly be necessary to point out, however, that the two delegations are bound to find common ground of agreement, since failure to do so would make the conference almost as abortive as that of 1930.

There is little doubt that the British delegation is quietly keeping Old Country correspondents supplied with material for publication at home, and as the British press comments are promptly telegraphed back to Canada there is some ground for the suspicion that all this is intended to influence the Canadian delegation's attitude. Hence, the solemn announcement in The Times of London that Mr. Bennett is facing imminent peril is not convincing and is not likely to alarm the Canadian Premier. The Times asks if "Mr. Bennett will make a brave stand for the policy of imperial co-operation, even if it involves the disintegration of his cabinet and construction of a national government with Liberal and Progressive help. Or will he succumb to the intense pressure brought to bear on him by Canadian industrialists, refuse to make further concessions to Britain and banish the high hopes with which the conference opened?" The Times considers Premier Bennett is facing the gravest crisis of his political career and says the British ministers understand the nature of the predicament and sympathize with him, but hope that he can not contemplate the responsibility for the conference's failure. On the one hand, the London daily goes on, "he can choose an assured place in the valhalla of imperial statesmen," or on the other hand, he can give in "to the massed resources of the high protectionist elements in Canada who feel their position threatened" by concessions the Premier may yet offer.

With this barrage of press propaganda from Britain, Mr. Baldwin and his colleagues feel better able to postpone the moment when Canada will have to be told what Great Britain actually will do in respect of Canadian lumber, wheat, meats and other products. The London Times might have said also that Mr. Baldwin as well as Mr. Bennett is in a predicament. There are members of the British delegation—also members of the National Government—who will not stand for a tax on food, no matter how much the whole-hog protectionist element of the delegation might feel like making concessions in this regard. More important perhaps than this, however, is the full realization on the part of all the British delegates that they dare not follow any course which would jeopardize Britain's trade with the world outside the British Empire, with which she does two-thirds of her business.

The object of this conference, as was made clear at the outset, was the expansion of trade between the countries comprising the British Commonwealth, and to reach agreements that would create no economic hostility in non-British countries. If the net result, however, is increased tariffs, not only will the British Empire not benefit in the long run, but the world also will not get the lead in tariff reductions it was hoped might be given by this gathering.

A HOPEFUL TONE

IN ANOTHER OF HIS PERIODICAL statements on the subject of the world's business, Mr. Roger W. Babson, the noted economist and financial authority, says the recent sharp up-rush in prices of stocks, bonds, wheat and other commodities emphasizes the fact that "bargain days won't last forever." He points out that those who hoard currency instead of making purchases of goods and securities will wake up to find that their currency has depreciated in value, whereas goods and securities have appreciated. In other words, as prices rise, the buying power of the dollar will fall, and goods and securities will be worth more than idle money. He then proceeds:

> The time to sell goods and securities and to buy money was in 1928 and 1929. The time to sell money in exchange for goods and securities is in 1932.
>
> Such great opportunities as exist to-day occur not more than once in a generation. Wholesale industrial commodity prices have been the lowest since 1914. Agricultural commodities have been 57 per cent below 1929, and the lowest in the twentieth century. The average price of nearly 800 commodities of all classes has been 33 per cent below that of three years ago.
> A number of individual commodities have been selling the lowest in this century and some of them lower than they were in the depression of 1893-1897.

By way of cheering up his compatriots, Mr. Babson notes that whether it is a mere coincidence or not, the fact remains that all the major business depressions since the American Civil War have ended between the months of May and September. In the 1873-1879 slump the market reached its final low point in June, 1877; in the 1884-1885 depression the bottom was reached in June, 1885; in the period between 1893-1896, the final low point was touched in August, 1896; in the 1920-1922 period, the final low also was reached in August, 1921.

All we can say about this latest statement from Mr. Babson is we hope the season of the year through which we now are passing will be referred to a year hence as the season of general business revival the world over.

THE PREMIER EN ROUTE

PREMIER TOLMIE IS REPORTED TO be on his way home. The report appears in the government press which ought to know something about its party leader's movements, notwithstanding much recent evidence to the contrary. Besides, there must have been some special significance in the adoption by the Saanich Conservative Association yesterday evening of a resolution acclaiming the Premier for "what he had done for the Dominion of Canada through his splendid efforts during the progress of the Economic Conference." As most people are aware, neither Premier Tolmie nor any other provincial premier has had any status at the conference. None of them has been permitted even to attend any of the sessions, which, by the way, are still going on with some of their problems unsettled.

Dr. Tolmie went to Ottawa in the first place to induce the federal government to pay arrears on unemployment relief up to May, under its agreement with the province, and to endeavor to effect some understanding relative to expenditures since that date. Ottawa authorized the payment of two million dollars of the $2,400,000 it undertook to finance up to that time, in concert with the province and municipalities, but as far as we can discover has not agreed to any arrangement beyond that period, although the province has been financing this problem to the tune of $300,000 a month.

Another objective of the Premier's trip was to impress upon the federal government the urgency of securing wider markets for Canadian natural products in the British market in its negotiations with the British delegation in the conference. In this he had the assistance of strong delegations from the various industries. Just how successful their efforts have been remains to be determined. So far, Canada and Great Britain are apart on trade questions.

We quite agree that these matters were sufficiently pressing to keep the Premier at the capital, and also that he did his best to promote the purposes for which he went there, but resolutions seeking to convey the impression that he was a big factor in the conference—to which neither he nor any other provincial premier was admitted—merely make him look foolish.

PAYING THE PIPER

WHATEVER IT MAY DESIRE TO try to do at a later date about the Irish Free State's association with the rest of the British Empire, the De Valera government's course would seem to be heading the country for economic disaster if not for something worse. At a special meeting of the shareholders of the Great Southern Railways, Sir Walter Nugent, in his capacity as chairman, warned that unless the Free State changes its tariff policy, the system may have to close down.

The new one dollar-a-ton tax against British coal is being blamed for creating the railway crisis, since British coal alone is suitable for the company's engines. And the situation which has arisen brought out the declaration from the shareholders that they could not submit to be financially penalized in order to help the political policy of the De Valera government.

The people of the Irish Free State knew in advance that if they turned out the Cosgrave government and put Mr. de Valera in charge of their business, one of his first acts would be to start the old republican machinery again. He wasted no time; but when he defaulted in respect of the land annuities he did not count on the very effective reply Great Britain would make. It is too early to get figures showing the drop in business between the two countries; but the railway situation as described by Sir Walter Nugent would seem to suggest what is taking place.

When people change governments that have given them good administration merely because they think "it is time for a change" they frequently pay very dearly for the experiment.

In the May "Monthly Review" of the Westminster Bank of Great Britain, the statement is made that "the British machinery industry has, aside from work on Soviet orders, very little business on hand." This can be taken in conjunction with the statement made by Viscount Snowden in the House of Lords recently that "there has not been a penny of loss incurred upon any of the credits which have been given for transactions in Russian trade." Small wonder the British delegation at the Imperial Economic Conference will not agree to any drastic action which would disturb business between Britain and Russia.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BONDS OF EMPIRE
Everyman

The advantages resulting from granting full independence to the Dominions must ultimately be greater than the disadvantages. If the relationship of Great Britain to those great markets is going to be determined by purely trading and commercial exchanges, then that relationship is on an insecure basis. History, psychology and culture are much more powerful bonds than the profits of industrial concerns.

IN PRAISE OF "DIRTY" DAYS
The Regina Leader

It is natural for humans to like the sunny, warm, lazy weather that fills them with a sense of well-being and comfort. When the "dirty" days come they step outdoors, the cold, wet wind drives a sharp cutting rain into their faces, and they turn up their collars, shiver and complain about the miserable weather. Yet it is the dirty weather that the race needs. It is the dull blustery days that makes old Mother Earth turn smiling green fields in to-morrow's sun. It is the dreary, dark, rainy weather that gives her a chance to do something for the peoples of the earth. Here in Saskatchewan there can be too much sunshine. The country needs to be pelted by rain, to shiver under dark skies, to be beaten in the face of Nature in a surly mood. What we need in this country is a poet to sing a joyous lay to a dark, cold, miserable wet, bone-piercing day. There has been too much toadying in the sunshine poets.

Loose Ends

An explanation which, like me, is rather fragile and brittle—but not too bad, considering the distance it came—from the roof of the world—on a black horse's tail—all of which happens to be true.

By H. B. W.

BE PATIENT with me to-day, impatient reader, for I am very fragile, alarmingly brittle. I have just been up to the roof of the world on the end of a black horse's tail. And when you come back from the roof of the world on the end of a black horse's tail you are almost sure to be fragile and brittle and not much use for anything.

* * *

I DO NOT mean that in a mere figurative sense, nor in the loose fashion to which you are accustomed in this column. I mean it quite literally. I have been up to the roof of the world on the end of a black horse's tail. The roof of the world, if you must know, is not far from Courtenay—they call it the Forbidden Plateau, but it is not in the least forbidding any more—and the black horse belongs to young Stuart Wood, who has been guiding people in there since he was precisely thirteen years old. Why, you may be tempted to ask, never having traveled on anything more dangerous than an automobile and having no imagination anyway—why, you may ask, did I travel on the end of Stuart Wood's black horse when I might, with considerably less effort, have traveled on its back? Well, I thought it would be more interesting, and it was. Besides, there was a lady on the horse's back and several dunnage bags which didn't seem to leave much room for me up there. So I trailed behind, hanging on with one hand to the horse's tail, as aforesaid, merely moving my legs and letting the poor horse do all the work.

* * *

YOU WOULD be surprised how comfortable it is to travel at the end of Stuart Wood's black horse's tail. I am prepared to say, after seventeen miles of it, that the man who put tails on the ends of horses knew what he was doing. He must have been thinking of me. Horse's tails and Jack Mitchell's pancakes, indeed, are two of the finest inventions on record. I should know, for I traveled in on one and out on the other and have come back whole and with a new zest for life, even if slightly fragile and brittle.

* * *

YES, I TRAVELED in seventeen miles behind Stuart Wood's horse and back seventeen miles on the pancakes of Jack Mitchell, who, by the way, is the best camp maker, cook, guide and story teller I have run against in quite a lot of adventuring abroad. You will find him at Courtenay, and you must take him along. I shall tell you more of those pancakes later, for they are too important to be lost in this general record and, besides, I am too fragile and brittle to-day to do justice to such a noble creature as Jack Mitchell's pancakes and Jack Mitchell's stories, which are even more delicious.

* * *

WELL, AS I was saying before my mind was diverted by these sweet gastronomical memories, I went to the Forbidden Plateau and I came back determined that everybody, even you, must go to the Forbidden Plateau some time and become a reformed character. Even a reader of this column would become reformed up there. Even its writer will be a different man in future, and I do not mean only a more brittle and fragile man. I mean, the spectacle of the Forbidden plateau, the air of the Forbidden Plateau, the immensity and magnificence of it (not to mention Jack Mitchell's cooking) are unlike anything you have ever seen before. One imagines that, while there may be more immense and magnificent places, there are none quite the same. The Forbidden Plateau is unique. So are its pancakes.

* * *

C. S. WOOD, the city clerk for Courtenay, discovered the Forbidden Plateau about six years ago while he was trying to trace up the source of the city's water supply. In those days he was afflicted with a weak heart, and he thought mountain climbing would kill or cure him. It cured him. It cured him rather too well for the comfort of those who try to travel with him. His fashion now is to cover the ground like an antelope and his estimates of distance are delightfully misleading. When he tells you that camp is just half a mile distant, be prepared to walk another couple of hours or so. You will understand why, after traveling with him, we are all fragile and brittle. But to come back to the black horse of Mr. Wood's son, Stuart, which I had almost forgotten.

* * *

HANGING ON to the tail of the horse, as I think I mentioned before, we mounted straight up into the clouds, up through thick timber where we could see only little patches of the sky above, up through a jungle of yellow cedar, that hardest of all created woods, whose acid smell made the air pungent and clean, up past innumerable brooks and rills which clattered merrily over their rocks and glistened in the narrow streaks of sunlight, up through miles of ferns and blueberries, which you could reach from your saddle or from your horse's tail, as the case might be, up ten miles of twisting trail until we emerged suddenly into another kind of world. This is the Plateau.

* * *

IT WAS nothing like what I imagined a plateau to be, but I suppose my knowledge of plateaux, if that be the plural noun, is not extensive. I had thought of a plateau as a kind of flat, uninteresting place with a few sheep roaming about it and a tree or two. Instead, I found it to be a fairy land of innumerable lakes as black and mysterious-looking as a woman's eyes, lakes as large as your bath tub, lakes as large as your city lot, lakes a mile long and studded with islands; and in between the lakes, as smooth as carpets, are little alpine meadows, green with lush grass and cut here and there by tiny streamlets, children of the snow; and back of them again, miles and miles of heather all purple and white with bloom; and standing everywhere, as symmetrical as trees on a Christmas card, the tall, thin, hemlocks looked as if they had been trimmed by hand.

* * *

THEN BEHIND all this is the great backbone of Vancouver Island, that ragged range which you can see from Courtenay and Comox. Right above you, just behind the narrow hemlocks, bulks the mass of Mount Albert Edward, a great ice field on its top and white lines flowing down his grey sides in zig-zag streaks; next to him the turrets and battlements of Castle Mountain as regular as if they had been built there by men, and further along an army of peaks, marching off to the furthest sky line.

* * *

IF YOU care to climb ten minutes from the camp of Eugene Croteau, a weather-beaten French-Canadian woodsman, who can put you up for the night beside a lake of emerald water, if you will climb up a mound of rock there for ten minutes, you will see another view still finer, the finest view I have yet laid eyes on. Out in front of you lie the green, timbered mountains of our island, rolling out to sea. Beyond them is the gleaming streak of the Gulf of Georgia with thin black islands swimming in it. Then back of that again is the white cluster of the Powell River pulp mills, and behind it the whole blue and white immensity of the Coast Range, rolling on and on into the clouds. But what else we saw up on the roof of the world, what we found as we followed the tinkle of the old bell mare through the alpine meadows by the light of a crescent moon, must wait for another day when I feel less fragile and brittle.

A GOOD CANDIDATE

To the Editor:—It is indeed gratifying to read in the press that the Liberals of the constituency of Esquimalt made such a splendid choice in selecting Mr. Whitney-Griffiths as their candidate to represent them at the next provincial election, and I am sure Mr. Whitney-Griffiths will have very little trouble reaching the objective he has set out to attain.

The constituency of Esquimalt has been represented long enough by Mr. Pooley, and it is now time for a change.

I am sure that the people of that constituency, Conservatives and Liberals alike, will offer up a prayer to the gods when they ring down the curtain on Mr. Pooley.

BRITISH WHEAT TRADE STUDIED

Figures Issued at Ottawa Show How Soviet Shipments Affected Canada

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—During the calendar year 1931 Russia supplied the United Kingdom with 24.24 per cent of its total wheat requirements, while Canada's percentage was slightly higher at 25.12. These figures were contained in a special report on world trade in wheat, issued yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics especially for the benefit of the Imperial Economic Conference.

Russia's exports of wheat to the United Kingdom in 1931 totaled 54,010,289 bushels, as compared with total Empire imports by the United Kingdom of 94,948,376 bushels.

The total wheat requirements in 1931 of the United Kingdom, chief wheat importing country of the world, amounted to about 223,000,000 bushels. This was supplied mainly as follows: Canada, 55,962,000 bushels; Australia, 43,397,000; British India, 899,100; other British Empire countries, 73,656; Russia, 54,010,298; Argentina, 38,701,714; United States, 15,576,000; Germany, 4,283,000; France, 35,000, and other foreign countries, 9,875,000.

PERIODS COMPARED

Russia's upsetting invasion of the Empire wheat market came in the last two years, the total to the United Kingdom in 1930 having been only 34,939,000 bushels, while the five-year average ended with that year was 8,783,000 bushels. This compares with a five-year average over the same period of 78,194,600 for Canada.

CANADA'S AVERAGE

Canada's average yearly share in the important Empire wheat markets during the five years ended with 1930 was as follows:

	Total Aver. Imports	Canada's Share
United Kingdom	196,671,671	78,194,600
Irish Free State	10,404,306	1,312,729
British India	9,075,829	164,610
Union of South Africa	4,867,869	1,022,263

Italy ranks next to England as the second biggest import market for wheat, with other countries ranking in the following order: Germany, France, Belgium-Luxemburg, Brazil, Netherlands, Japan, Greece, Switzerland and the United States. Canada's average yearly share in the most important of these markets during the five years ended with 1930 was as follows:

	Total Aver. Imports	Canada's Share
Italy	80,091,837	21,916,709
Germany	77,040,339	28,362,983
France	44,381,314	10,870,844
Belgium-Luxemburg	42,844,073	9,519,821

Estimated gross average yearly British Empire exports of wheat for the five years ended with 1930 amounted to 330,166,000 bushels. Canada, which leads all wheat exporting countries, had an average of 257,863,000 bushels.

Estimated average world exports during the same period totaled 692,649,000 bushels. Argentina led among the foreign countries contributing to this total with an average of 149,785,696 bushels, with the United States, Hungary, Algeria, Germany, Roumania, France and Russia following next in order. Russia's average was 31,968,300 bushels.

MOBILIZATION TALE DENIED

Statement Irish Free State Ministry Recalling Men From Abroad Declared Baseless

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—"A complete fabrication," was the characterization by the heads of the Irish Free State delegation to the Imperial Conference here of the dispatch from St. John, N.B., which quoted Vincent Boyle, self-styled former member of the Irish Republican army, as declaring 700 Irishmen had been recalled by the Free State Minister of Defence.

"We don't know this man Boyle—have never heard of him," said one of the delegates. He added laughingly that Boyle had completely divested his story of conviction when he declared that "the Minister of Defence had sent them transportation back to Ireland and $100 each."

"We're no money for that sort of thing," said the delegation spokesman.

His comment had the authority of Sean T. O'Kelly, leader of the Free State group, and Sean Lemass, the other delegate.

A dispatch from St. John, N.B., yesterday said:

Seven hundred Irishmen, recalled to Ireland by the present Minister of Defence, will sail from New York next Sunday, according to a statement made here to-day by Vincent Boyle.

"All of us have served with the Republican Army and were forced to leave Ireland when Cosgrave came into power," he said. "We differed from him in political views."

Boyle declared thousands of men, recalled by the Valera Government, were pouring into Ireland from all parts of the world. "Trouble is brewing in Ulster. They're letting me back in my country to fight," he remarked.

The Minister of Defence had sent them transportation back to Ireland and $100 each, he said.

TAIYOS DEFEAT LOOP LEADERS

Score 8 to 2 Victory Over Eagles in Twilight Baseball League Fixture

Handing the league leading Eagles an 8 to 2 setback at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday evening, Taiyos regained undisputed possession of second place in the twilight Baseball League. After scoring nine straight wins, the Eagles have hit a slump in recent weeks, dropping three games.

M. Ashikawa, on the mound for the Nippons, held the Eagles to two hits in six innings. The game was called at that stage on account of darkness. The Taiyos collected eight hits off the combined offerings of Emery and Marsh. Ashikawa struck out eight and walked four. Emery and Marsh had eight strikeouts between them.

After securing a four-run lead in the first inning the Taiyos were alw in command in bolstering their vantage by scoring three more run the third.

The score by innings:

Eagles	0	0	2	0	0	0
Taiyos	4	0	3	0	0

Batteries — Emery, Marsh Woodward; M. Ashikawa and M. Ku bara.

100TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

This Is Centenary of Bank of Nova Scotia Whose Beginnings Are Historic

It Opposed the "Family Compact" Monopoly in Banking

This month a great Canadian banking institution celebrates its hundredth anniversary.

Founded at Halifax in 1832, the Bank of Nova Scotia has risen from a local Maritime institutions (one of the first of its kind in Canada) to front rank among Canadian chartered banks. International in scope, it now ranks fourth in point of assets among all Canadian banks. Its 330 branches stretch from coast to coast in the Dominion, and include Newfoundland, England and West Indies and the United States.

The bank first opened its doors to the public in a room in John Roman's building on Hollis Street, Halifax, in August, 1832. Halifax itself at that time was but a small British naval port of 15,000 inhabitants, whose muddy streets converged at the waterfront where seafaring commerce was carried on. Its only banking facilities were a private banking partnership started seven years previously and known as the Halifax Banking Company, which wielded a political and financial monopoly over the province. It was in part to break this monopoly that the Bank of Nova Scotia was organized by a coterie of local business men headed by William Lawson, who held their first organization meeting at the Merchants Exchange Coffee House in Halifax in December, 1831.

OPPOSES "FAMILY COMPACT" MONOPOLY.

In those days yearnings towards responsible government were being felt in many parts of the continent. Although the movement did not fully materialize in Nova Scotia until 1837, under the brilliant leadership of Joseph Howe, the fight for incorporation by the Bank of Nova Scotia against the "family compact," as the Halifax Banking Company membership in the Legislative Council was called, was definitely instrumental in moulding the political destiny of the province. Joseph Howe signed the original petition for incorporation of the bank and for years kept an account there.

Thus the Bank of Nova Scotia was the first chartered bank in Nova Scotia, its charter being modelled on that of the Bank of New Brunswick (founded in 1820 and later absorbed by the Bank of Nova Scotia). The bank is proud of the fact that its charter was the first to include a clause providing for the double liability of shareholders—a provision which has now become a fundamental tenet of the Canadian banking system.

William Lawson, a member for Halifax in the Legislative Assembly of the province and chief sponsor of the project, was first president of the bank, and the original directorate included many men who later became prominent in legal and political life in Nova Scotia. The bank was originally chartered as "The President, Directors and Company of the Bank of Nova Scotia," a name which it retained until 1874. The bank's first general manager or cashier, as the chief executive officer was then called, was James Forman. The names of the original directorate were: Alex. Murison, William Lawson, William B. Bliss, John Brown, M. B. Almon, James W. Johnston, Lewis Bliss, James B. Uniacke, S. N. Binney, James Leishman, William Murdoch, James Donaldson and William F. Black.

PAID DIVIDENDS SINCE 1833

The bank's first annual statement presented to shareholders in February, 1833, showed but four liabilities—capital stock paid in £50,000; notes in circulation, £16,613.10s; deposits in the bank, £18,943 13s 10d, and net profits in hand £310 17s 9d. Total assets were £85,868. An item of £153 8s 9d, being the "balance in the hands of the agents of the bank in New York and London" reflects the dealing in foreign exchange early undertaken by Canadian banks. The bank declared its first dividend on July 31, 1833, at the rate of 3 per cent per annum.

Early progress was slow. Branches, or agencies as they were called, were opened in many parts of the province in the first decade of the bank's existence, but were closed subsequently from lack of business. It was not till a young Scotch banker named Thomas Fyshe took over the position of cashier in 1876 that real progress and expansion were evidenced. A cautious, competent Scot, he first set to work to make the bank's "inside" position impregnable. By the time he left, twenty-five years later, to become joint general manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada, the bank had greatly widened its operations, with thirty-seven branches throughout Canada, extending as far west as Winnipeg, and with a flourishing stake in Newfoundland, Jamaica and the United States.

EXPANSION ABROAD

The foreign development of the bank is particularly noteworthy. The bank's first real venture outside the Dominion was to Minneapolis in 1885. In 1889 the bank opened for business in Kingston, Jamaica. This was the first time in Canadian banking history that a chartered bank ventured to establish any branch outside Canada, Great Britain or the United States. The bank now issues its own notes in that colony, operates twelve branches and occupies an outstanding position in the financial and economic life of the island.

An equally important move was the opening of a branch at St. John's, Newfoundland. When the two native banks, which alone served that colony, collapsed in 1894, the Bank of Nova Scotia was the first institution to offer banking facilities to the city, and business commenced eleven days after the crash on December 10. Other Canadian banks opened a few weeks later. The bank now has twelve well-placed branches in Newfoundland.

Subsequently, to round out and expand its operations in the West Indies, the bank opened branches in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

GENERAL OFFICE MOVED TO TORONTO

As a result of the development and growth of the bank's business in central and western Canada, its chief executive office was moved to Toronto in March, 1900. This year it celebrated its one hundredth annual meeting by holding it in its new head office building in Halifax—one of the finest examples of banking architecture in Canada and embodying a new motive in Canadian architecture through the use of conventionalized forms of purely Canadian flora and fauna.

In its 100 years of existence the bank has had but six general managers. Following Thomas Fyshe came H. C. McLeod, a Maritimer whose fight for external inspection for banks (a feature of Canadian banking since 1923) will long be remembered in Canadian banking annals. He served the bank till 1910, when he was succeeded by H. A. Richardson, who piloted the bank through the difficult and strenuous days of the war. On Mr. Richardson's death in 1923, his place was taken by J. A. McLeod, another Maritimer, who this year holds the presidency of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

IMPORTANT AMALGAMATIONS

It was under Mr. Richardson's aegis that three important amalgamations took place. In 1913 the bank absorbed the Bank of New Brunswick, whose history dated back to 1820, and which was at that time the second oldest banking institution in Canada. It had maintained its identity for nearly a century as a more or less local institution, and the benefits of linking up with a national organization such as the Bank of Nova Scotia were obvious.

In November, 1914, just at the beginning of the war, the Metropolitan, a well-established Toronto bank, was absorbed. Founded in 1902 by a group of prominent Toronto business men, the Metropolitan Bank had the distinction of being the only Canadian bank to start business with a reserve fund equal to its capital stock, its shares having been sold at a 100 per cent premium. The present president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, S. J. Moore, was president of the Metropolitan Bank at the time of the merger, and its general manager was W. D. Ross, latterly Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and now a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia. This amalgamation gave the bank a desirable and valuable banking connection in Ontario.

The third merger was with the Bank of Ottawa, and was consummated in 1919. Founded in 1874 by men who had pioneered in the lumber trade of the Ottawa Valley, this bank had built up a unique and important position in that locality and in addition had a number of branches in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Its acquisition proved a valuable asset to the bank and afforded a wider national banking service to an important clientele.

RESERVES EQUAL TO TWICE THE CAPITAL

The Bank of Nova Scotia in its last annual statement showed total assets of $262,496,000. Paid-up capital stock is $12,000,000 and alone among all Canadian banks it shows a reserve fund equal to twice its capital, namely, $24,000,000. Total desposits in the statement were over the $200,000,000 with cash resources nearly 11 per cent of liabilities to the public, and quick assets nearly 55 per cent of liabilities. The book value of each share of capital stock is $304.

U.S. BONUS MEN OFF TO MEXICO

That Is, If Land Lease and Other Details Arranged

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 10.—A transcontinental trek of jobless world war veterans to a haven in Mexico was planned to-day.

Plans for the trip were laid by Doak Carter, leader of a wing of the disbanded bonus army, on receipt of an offer from Charles P. Reiniger of Los Angeles to turn a tract of 1,500 acres of land over to the bonus marchers for colonization.

Carter immediately issued orders for his followers to head generally southwest, and took steps to meet with Reiniger in Columbus and sign a lease proposed by the land owner.

Described by Reiniger as fertile bottom land, the tract is situated in the state of Chihuahua, only a few miles across th Rio Grande. It would be given to the veterans, Reiniger said in his telegraphed offer, under a lease which would run for one year, for five years, or until the bonus is paid.

Reiniger said he would pay the taxes and let the colonists keep the crops.

Carter said he had not decided as yet what term of lease the veterans would prefer.

Selection of the name "American Emergency Force" for his group, which he estimated would total 6,000, was announced by Carter along with the statement that its primary purpose had been changed. Heretofore, he said, they had sought only to secure payment of the bonus, but henceforth their primary purpose would be to obtain relief and a livelihood for jobless veterans and to oppose the re-election of President Hoover.

Bruce Most Handsome, Thomas Most Popular, At Ottawa Conference

Times Staff Correspondent Tells of the Colorful Characters Among the Delegates at the Imperial Economic Gathering

By Archie Wills, Times Staff Correspondent

Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Right Hon. Stanley Bruce, head of the Australia delegation, has been voted the handsomest member of the Imperial Economic Conference, that is, if you exclude the ladies. As a matter of fact there is little in the way of pulchritude among the men here. They have mostly passed the age when figure and features count for very much in getting along in the world. Among the advisers and clerks attached to the various delegations there are some men who can compare favorably with the advertisements for men's shirts and the like. As a matter of fact some of these supernumeraries carry with them an air of importance far surpassing that of the chief delegates, but then, that has been a human fault down through the centuries.

The most popular man at the conference appears to be Rt. Hon. James H. Thomas, British Secretary for the Dominions. He may have been an engine-driver years ago, but he bears no resemblance to one now. He dresses and carries himself like a banker, and his ready wit and smile seem to have captivated most of the other delegates. Whether or not his winning ways will be sufficient to make the Dominion delegates forget their duty to their own people is a question the future will decide. There seems to be pretty hard talking once the delegates get inside their chambers and lock the doors.

Mr. Thomas received a flattering reception at a banquet at which he was a guest of honor. After replying to the toast in his honor in humorous vein Mr. Thomas became quite eloquent.

"This is an economic conference of the British commonwealth of nations; many people have jeered and sneered at what they call my super-patriotism. I answer that by saying: What other nations, what other constitutions in the world, can give a humble engine-cleaner the honor accorded me this evening?" he said.

"Our constitution recognizes neither class nor creed. That constitution I will not only defend but will do my best to preserve. That is the constitution under which we live, and as my friend Havenga so well said, twenty-five years ago we had war, enmity and bitterness. To-day South Africa is part of the British Commonwealth, and freely and frankly says, 'The constitution of this great Empire is big enough and broad enough to include all nationalities; one King, one flag, absolute freedom; united not in a selfish or narrow desire; not trying to subject people to tyranny nor to trample on their national aspirations. This great brotherhood is broad enough for all, wide enough for all to cement us in the main idea of King and country.'"

Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, is an interesting personage here. He does not look as severe as his pictures lead one to believe. On Monday he dressed in a tight-fitting blue serge suit with a grey felt hat turned up all around. As he stood waiting for the elevator he seemed unconcerned with the hustle and movement about him.

An elevator door opened and the operator shouted: "Going up, please." The chancellor made for the door, at the double, which made one realize that even men of high rank have to act quickly at times when even a bellboy calls.

Two of the Indian delegates here are very interesting characters. Sir Atul Chatterjee, head of the delegation, wore his turban during the opening in the House of Commons, and it was a warm day. But since then he has worn a straw hat.

Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon, another member of the Indian delegation, probably attracts the most attention. He always wears a goatskin pointed hat which comes down to his ears, and his suit is of dark grey, the coat cut much like a Prince Albert. When you see him with this dress on in the heat it makes you wonder why Gandhi's garb is not more popular. A sheet of a hotel bed would be plenty of covering for one walking the streets here these days.

Seth Haroon has his wife, daughter and son with him, and they dine together in the dining-room of the Chateau. I told you before about the dresses the ladies wear. Since then I have seen Mrs. Haroon and her daughter several times, and each time they had a different robe on, with shoes and veil to match. As far as the young son goes he dresses like an ordinary white boy, but I notice that he keeps his hair better brushed.

While on the subject of dress I saw a man come into the lobby last night in a golf outfit. He is the first one I have seen, and while I said in a previous article that anything goes in the way of dress for men here, I must admit that this golfer looked as out-of-place as a bandaged thumb at a bridge party. This golfer wore those loose-fitting pants made out of linen and they looked like a dishcloth. A little starch in them might have helped, but still the fellow looked as hot as a porter after he has made up all the uppers in a Pullman in July. Perhaps his outfit looked all right when he started, but eighteen holes of golf in this weather would be enough to make a man look like the product of a wet wash laundry.

So far I have not noticed anyone wearing flowers in their buttonholes. These politicians do not seem to have the reverence for flowers that "Duff" Pattullo and Harry Pooley have out home. If every delegate had a flower in his coat it would cheer things up here immensely, particularly when you can not get even a smell out of the conference itself.

Hon. W. Downie Stewart, Minister of Finance and Customs in New Zealand, is one of the most cheerful delegates, despite his illness. He has a smile for everyone. He has to be taken everywhere in his wheel-chair. He gets in his chair in his suite and is pushed to his car by an attendant. He is assisted into his motor and driven to the Parliament Buildings, where he goes into the conference in his chair. Mr. Stewart has arthritis, which has developed from trench fever contracted in the Great War.

Viscount Hailsham, British Secretary of State for War, is an interesting figure. He has a large head practically bald, a round face with a schoolgirl complexion and his remaining grey hair curled up over his ears. He is a heavy-set man and one of the principal men of the British delegation. He is chairman of the most important of the five committees, that on promotion of trade within the Commonwealth.

Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the British delegation, is the "bulldog" of the party. His strong, well-formed head and his well-known pipe are quite noticeable in a crowd. So far little has been heard of this great man, but there have been comments that it is well he is the head of the delegation and not Jimmy Thomas.

Having introduced Gandhi in this article, I might add that Sir George Schuster, member of council of the Governor-General in India, who is here, thinks that putting the Mahatma in jail saved his life.

Hon. F. C. Alderdice, Premier of Newfoundland, was the last of the delegates to arrive. He could not leave his country until he had his new administration functioning properly. He arrived first of this week. He has a wooden leg, having been injured in an accident some time ago.

We see very little of Premier Bennett. He is having a really busy time, being chairman of the conference and anxious to see that all idle moments of delegates are well spent.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

EXERCISE WILL SLENDERIZE NECK

If your neck isn't a slender, lovely column any more, but is crinkling up as though it has held your head too long, anyway, mold it back in place.

Make your chin line firm again. Start to stretch your neck. Pretend that you want to see things in the distance. Stretch. Use your muscles. Choose hard food to eat, now and then, and chew. When you are alone, go through chewing exercises. If it will help you any to chew some gum, in privacy of course, do it. But make your muscles work.

Exercise, nourishment and massage come next.

Tense the neck muscles. Pull your head back until your head is bent as far back as you can pull it. Now force the head forward, slowly but firmly, until your chin comes as near to resting on your breast as you can make it. Ten times every morning and ten times every night should make you proficient at this exercise.

HERE'S ANOTHER

Stand erect, bend your head down, rotate it to the right side, as far down to the shoulder as you can bend it, then on back, on to the left side and then back to the front. Try this ten times, too.

Lie on the floor on your stomach, your whole body perfectly flat. Now raise your neck as far as you can.

Rub nourishing creams on your throat if it is crepy. Work your massaging exercises at the back of the neck, as well as on the throat. Use holding strokes as well as messaging efforts. Circulation is speeded up, muscles are strengthened, and new beauty and strength result.

Women Of Java Wear Sovereigns As Gold Buttons

Englishwoman Says Natives Display Worldly Wealth on Person; Lots of Gold There.

Canadian Press

London, Aug. 10.—Writing in Overseas, Margaret Holloway says: "Old men and women have been known to keep a trove of gold coins in stockings or in the mattresses of their beds. The natives of Java and Sumatra are not so secretive; they parade the streets with their worldly wealth displayed. They wear real sovereigns and American 'eagles' in the form of jewelry, or gold buttons, and in any town or village of the Dutch East Indies you can see more gold in a day than in twenty years at home.

"Forget for a moment London's broad thoroughfares and fashionable shoppers and, in spite of the intense heat of tropical Sumatra, walk along the narrow street of this eastern town. The atmosphere in the bazaar is hot and oppressive while we jostle with a strangely cosmopolitan crowd. Brown, yellow and black skins, with a sprinkling of white, pass and loiter. Time is no object to the colored folk. Slow creaking bullock carts lumber down the road. Gold and silver coins swing pendulum-like on the oxen's foreheads; bracelets, nose-studs and toe-rings glitter on the almost naked Indian drivers.

"Clothed only in a long chain and gold dollar, little Ah Fong is dandled by his fond father outside the stuffy shop. With a smiling 'Good-day, Mem Besar,' the Chinese cobbler shows to advantage his conspicuous gold teeth—for which my shoe repairs are partly responsible.

"Mincing by in embroidered clogs and gaily-patterned 'sarong' is a comely Java girl roughly worth, say $100. Her flashy silken coat is pinned across with five sovereigns, while seven half-sovereigns are chained on each brown wrist. She is hatless, of course, and her abundant black hair is 'fixed' with six more sovereigns, three in each elaborate prong. Gold anklets jingle as she walks. Her admirer strolls in front, the perfect native gentleman, with $35 of buttons and two gold studs.

"With a click-clack of wooden clogs Chinese women trundle along the pathway. The heavy jade earrings and bracelets provide a contrast with their sleek black hair, black trousers and coats. Diamonds and gold scintillate in the sunshine as their wealthier sisters ride by in smooth-running rickshaws. Flat-footed and serious the high caste Malay girls pass us by, but in spite of their veiled beauty, we catch the glitter of gold and a glimpse of pale skins and soft brown eyes. As the Sultan's limousine speeds on its way to the palace all eyes are raised to glance at the ladies of the harem sedately seated inside. Their jewels and silks are the envy of many a pretty native girl."

Catholic Church Picnic. — The congregation of Our Lady, Queen of Peace Church, Esquimalt, will hold its annual basket picnic on Sunday at Finlayson Arm, Goldstream Flats. Members are asked to meet at the church at 10.45 o'clock, when transportation wil lbe provided.

BIG SUPPLY OF JAM FOR POOR

Y.W.C.A. Preserves Fruit Given For Purpose; Sent to Friendly Help

As a result of the generous response to its appeal for fruit, the Y.W.C.A. was able to-day to send 250 quarts of jam to the Friendly Help Association for distribution among the needy of the city. Voluntary workers have been busy at the "Y" preserving the fruit, and to-day's consignment, which it is hoped will be the forerunner of others, included raspberry, loganberry, rhubarb and ginger, rhubarb and pineapple, rhubarb and lemon jam and apple butter.

A generous offer of two tons of loganberries has been received, providing pickers can be found to give their services in gathering the fruit, and anyone willing to assist is kindly requested to communicate with Miss Gene McLeod at the Y.W.C.A., E 0113. The "Y" still has a plentiful supply of jars and sugar on hand, all supplies having been kindly donated by friends.

TELLS OF LOVE OF DEAD MAN

U.S. Authoress Says She Got Divorce to Wed Late Smith Reynolds

Associated Press

London, Aug. 10.—Nancy Hoyt, United States writer of sophisticated novels, said yesterday the death of Smith Reynolds at Winston Salem, N.C., had sent her to London to blot out the memory of her love for the man whose death had resulted in murder indictments against two persons.

Miss Hoyt, who recently underwent an operation, is living here under the care of a trained nurse.

She met Reynolds in 1930 when both were bound home from Europe aboard the liner Leviathan, she said to-day, and thereafter they were the closest friends. Both were married at the time, but they obtained divorces in order to wed each other.

"We were both stubborn," said Miss Hoyt. "One night last September he asked me to fly to California with him to be married.

"I wouldn't do it. I thought my friends would say Nancy was marrying for money. Besides, he was eight years younger and I was fool enough to think my friends would talk.

"He went away and I never saw him again. I didn't even hear he had married until April. The last I heard from him was a letter at the end of last March. I never meant to give him up, but I didn't want to be a laughing stock."

Miss Hoyt said she wanted to return to the United States now, but her friends advised her to rest and recover from her illness and shock.

She is a sister of the late Elinor Wiley and a daughter of the former United States solicitor-general.

Their meeting on the ship, she said, occurred when Reynolds, "like a boy in a dancing school," asked her to dance. She declined.

"He had seen me before in America," she said.

"He liked me because he thought I had 'culture.' He had a lot himself, if he only had known it. Smith seemed erratic in a quiet way. He always was gloomy except about aviation, and he really was a crack pilot.

"He was the least effeminate man I ever knew, but he said men had often been kinder to him than women. He was a socialist and wanted to share everything with people. He never spent money on clothes and such things."

OIL HEIRESS GETS DECREE

Former Millicent Rogers Given Divorce From Argentinian Husband in Paris

Paris, Aug. 10—A conditional divorce decree has been granted the former Millicent Rogers, daughter of Col. H. H. Rogers, millionaire capitalist, from her second husband, Arturo Ramos, Argentinian cattle baron and sportsman, it was learned to-day.

Although confirmation was withheld by the courts, the Standard Oil heiress revealed that the action had been started in the Seine tribunal, but that she has "two months in which to reconsider." The decree is comparable to the interlocutory decree granted in the United States.

Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, Austrian nobleman, was the former Miss Rogers's first husband. They were married in January, 1924, against Colonel Rogers's will, with the result that the name of the newly-married couple did not appear in the social register.

SENSATIONAL SUITS

After divorce action in 1927 and a sensational series of legal actions centring about their son, Peter Salm, the former countess was married to Ramos in November, 1927. They spent a long honeymoon in South America.

It was reported Colonel Rogers had paid Count Salm $300,000 on condition he would abandon future claims to custody of young Peter. A second son was born to the oil heiress two years after she became Ramos's bride.

A pretty wedding took place on July 30 at 8.30 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents, when Alberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bayne, Beaver Creek, Y.I., became the bride of Mr. Gerald H. Gray, youngest son of Mr. and the late Mrs. St. George Gray of Duncan. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the service was conducted by Rev. G. Stevenson of Alberni. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her traveling suit of navy blue with accessories to match, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and spiral fern. Both bride and groom were unattended. Following the ceremony a reception was held for immediate relatives. Refreshments were served from a prettily decorated table centred by a three-tiered wedding cake. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Gray left for their honeymoon after which they will make their home in Vancouver.

Asks Compensation For Loss of Eye

Hamilton, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—The General Hospital of this city has received an application for compensation for the loss of an eye, suffered in 1918, by a student nurse, Miss Grace Dunn. Miss Dunn's eye was injured when a vial exploded, but it was not until recently that she learned that the eye will have to be removed. She asked that her case be considered, and the suggestion was made that a place on the staff of the hospital might be secured for her.

At the board meeting Dr. Langrill, of the staff, read a letter explaining that nurses graduating from Ontario hospitals would be prevented from trying the New York state examinations in the future on account of changed educational requirements, but he showed that this would not apply to other states. A letter from the nursing superintendent, Miss F. A. Rayside, stated that the prevalent unemployment of nurses was due to their being trained in too great numbers, and she advised the rotation of graduate nurses every two or three months as a solution for the problem of their finding employment.

AUTUMN HATS FORECASTED

New York, Aug. 10 (By Jane Eads)—Small, close-fitting hats with an international flare—there's an English boater, Spanish sailor, Florentine tricorne and shapes inspired by the Alabama mammy's bandanna are what the women should wear this fall, the Retail Milliners' Association of America suggests.

The close-fitting cloche, the tiny turban, the small hats with varied brims, and the sailor, all worn far down over the right eye, were shown at the association's annual fall show yesterday evening. Bows led as trimmings and a great many feather effects were shown, placed to the fore of the hat.

The skull-shaped and beret crowns were favored with many folded, shirred, tucked and stitched effects featured. Brims were popular but they were narrow and often turned up close around the crown in a variety of new ways.

Felt, new crepe-like wools, velour cloth and some dull silks were shown for daytime. Velvets led for evening with shirred, transparent velvet and Chenille favored. Soleil felt, satin, and a number of feather turbans were for fromal wear.

This charming bag and shoe ensemble is in white kid printed with modernistic motifs in bright colors to match the costume accessories.

HOW TO PREPARE VEGETABLE PLATE

As vegetables come into the market in greater variety and abundance, the "vegetable plate" dinner becomes more important. The skillful use of many vegetables during late summer makes for both economy and health.

There are several important factors that must be kept in mind when planning vegetable plate meals. The structure of vegetables, the method of cooking and serving and the food values of the various vegetables chosen must be considered. Contrast of color and flavor should influence the choice as well as the method of cooking and serving. If one vegetable is to be served creamed, let another be served plain with butter, another grilled or browned, and a third in the form of a fritter, timbale or croquette.

While all vegetables contain at least a trace of protein, it is not enough to keep up the balance in the body between the giving out and the intake of energy. Vegetable protein is of poorer quality than that found in other sources. Nuts, eggs, cheese and milk can be introduced into vegetable plates in such a way that the proper balance is maintained without using meat.

Cheese can be used with some vegetables if added to the white sauce served with them. All vegetables do not combine well with a cheese sauce, so the choice is limited, but cauliflower, potatoes and tomatoes are delicious with cheese. Summer squash and egg plant are good with cheese just melted over them. Toasted cheese sandwiches can, of course, be served with any combination of vegetables to furnish the protein in an easily digested form along with the bread stuff.

Poached or hard cooked eggs add interest to almost all vegetable combinations.

Stuffed vegetables such as tomatoes and peppers and potatoes can be the means of taking care of the protein calories if the stuffing is chosen with care. Tomatoes or peppers stuffed with a combination of rise and peanuts finely chopped are particularly good for an August dinner. Other nuts can of course be used, but peanuts are suggested because they are cheap and very rich in protein. They combine well with nearly all vegetables, too.

The following vegetable plate menu will suggest other combinations: Stuffed baked tomatoes, creamed celery, corn on the cob, buttered peas.

Contrast of color, texture, method of serving and flavor are observed in the choice of the vegetables. Balance in food values is obtained by the materials added for the serving or "dressing" of the vegetables.

A simple dessert of fresh fruit always is acceptable with a vegetable dinner when the proper balance has been maintained throughout the meal. If the plate has been lacking in protein, custard is a good choice for the dessert.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast: Greengage plums, cereal, cream, broiled liverwurst, celery and radishes, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Potato and parsley soup with grated cheese, graham bread and butter sandwiches, tomato and green pepper salad, lemonade, cookies.

Dinner: Roasted spring chicken, grilled sweet potatoes and pineapple, creamed cauliflower, combination green salad, peach shortcake, milk, coffee.

STUDENTS TO PAY TUITION FEES

Canadian Press

North Vancouver, Aug. 10.—During the coming school term, September 1 to December 31, all district pupils attending the North Vancouver high school who are over fifteen years old will have to pay their own tuition fees, according to a decision of the district school board.

Up to the present the municipality has paid tuition fees of all district high school pupils up to the time they left that institution.

The new arrangement is only of a temporary nature and will be open for revision at the end of the next term.

It has not yet been ascertained how many pupils will be affected. In recent years there have been, on an average, about 120 district pupils enrolled in the North Vancouver high school and tuition fees for these and others attending other institutions outside of the municipality have aggregated about $14,000. The average cost per pupil for high school tuition has been $105 annually.

U.S. NAVY MAN IS PROMOTED

Washington, Aug. 10.—Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle force, to-day will relieve Admiral Frank H. Schofield as commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

Many changes in navy personnel were announced to-day. Pringle will take command of Admiral McNamee's battleship squadron with the rank of rear-admiral.

Admiral McNamee is well-known at Victoria. He was here several days last summer aboard the U.S.S. Idaho. He was extensively entertained, and was host at a large dance on the quarter deck of the huge battleship.

CRITICIZES THE GOV. GENERAL

Toronto Columnist in "Brawl" With Rideau Hall Over Pronunciation

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 10.—What he calls "our unseemly brawl with Rideau Hall," is cheerfully discussed by J. V. McAree, sprightly columnist of The Mail and Empire, after he had been rebuked by many correspondents.

"Our information from Rideau Hall is that His Excellency is breathing heavily and with no little significance as a result of our somewhat impertinent comment upon his pronunciation of certain words, 'economic' in particular. Government House circles point out, (1) that the King can do no wrong; (2) that the Governor-General is the representative of the King, and (3) that it is the King's English which is spoken," he says.

"The subversive elements in the community, on the other hand, contend that there is a way of speaking correct English on this continent that differs somewhat from that in the Mother Country, and that a governor-general should speak in the American way—taking the continent as a whole—rather than in the way of the United Kingdom. We have had quite a spate of correspondence on the matter, the consensus being that we were wrong when we said that the word economic should be pronounced as if spelt ek-onomic as Mr. Bennett pronounces it, and not ee-konomic as Lord Bessborough pronounces it. Underlying much of this loyal correspondence is the suggestion that we are sapping the foundations of the throne.

"Canadian, Vox Clamans and A. McPhail—we do not think it is Agnes—all pointed out to us that the Oxford English dictionary gives the long e accent. When we read their protests we thought, 'Oh! Fish! There is another of those gold-darn mistakes that make it necessary to devote the Saturday column to explanations, defences and apologies. How is it possible we asked our better nature, 'for you to be so dumb? Then we consulted Webster and found that he too gave the long e. But we knew that if we searched long enough we should find somebody to side with us and so it happened on the next cast. The Standard, edited by the learned Dr. Frank Vizetelly, gives the e short. So the present line up is Messrs. Us, Bennett and Vizetelly against His Excellency, The Oxford, and our correspondents. We think we may include Mr. Baldwin on our side, so the odds are overwhelming. In fact the contest is so one-sided as to be hardly a contest at all."

WHEN BABIES GO "BACK TO THE LAND"

Mrs. Smith from the city went to visit Mrs. Brown in the country and took her baby along.

Mrs. Brown had a baby, too, about the same age.

Mrs. Smith's baby had a sterilized nursery and she was dressed in fine white clothes that were still spotless after a ten-mile ride.

She was suntanned, however, for she got her daily sunbaths on the porch in her play-yard. The play-yard was scrubbed daily and the baby's hands never touched anything that was not first made germ safe.

Imagine Mrs. Smith's surprise then to see Mrs. Brown doing sewing under a tree while her naked baby crawled around over the grass.

WHAT!—NO PEN?

After the greetings were over Mrs. Smith looked around for a place to put her little girl.

"Do you have a play-yard?"

"No, I'm sorry. I should have one for the days Jannie can't be outdoors. But the summer has been so nice I haven't invested. Just set Caroline on the grass."

"She can't walk."

"I know. But she creeps. That's all Jennie does, too. Try her."

"She'll get things in her knees."

"I pick a splinter out of Jennie now and then, but not often. Oh, come on, turn her loose."

The babies were regarding each other, the nearly black country child and the more delicately tanned city child.

Mrs. Smith did the undressing slowly. "I hope she won't catch cold. She has never gone without something on before."

"Oh, no, she won't. Not on a boiling day like this."

Mrs. Smith sat her sterilized baby on the ground with much the same feeling she would have surrendered her to a tiger's den.

A BUSY DAY

It took the small visitor about five seconds to reach the rose bed. Rescued and brought back, she bolted in another direction.

For the first time in her life she could really stretch her limbs.

Finally she settled down, but she got more exercise that afternoon than in all her old life put together. She did not eat grass and she did not catch cold. There was a little scratch on one knee, that was all. The babies played; the mothers talked. It was a peaceful afternoon.

When Mrs. Smith reluctantly went home her last words were: "Next year we give up that house and move out here. I see what babies need now."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

APPETITELESS BABIES

Appetiteless babies! This is the season when they flourish. And mothers are always upset about this condition and demand ways of increasing the child's consumption of some special article of food. Sometimes there are good ways of so doing, often it is better not to force anything and to let the appetite increase naturally.

In the case to be considered to-day there are some very trivial changes which it is wise to make, and they apply to many other appetiteless cases.

Mrs. E. A. has a baby of nine months who is practically weaned from the breast but refuses to take sufficient milk to keep up her gain in weight. "The trouble," writes Mrs. E. A., "is that she does not care to be nursed but she takes small amounts of other milk. She is losing weight now, lost two ounces last week and several the week before. She weighed only six pounds, thirteen ounces at birth and now weighs sixteen pounds.

"I took her to the doctor and he said to give her undiluted, boiled milk. He also advised custards and junket and gelatin, but she takes no more than a spoonful of those and then pushes them away. I have always removed the food when she pushes it away.

ERRORS IN THIS MENU?

"6 a.m., nursing; 8 a.m., two ounces of orange juice, one teaspoonful of cod liver oil; 10 a.m., four tablespoonfuls of cereal cooked in milk and one to two ounces of milk; 2 p.m., one-half can of 'baby' vegetables, one egg yolk; one or two teaspoonfuls of fruit and one or two ounces of milk; 4 p.m., two ounces of orange juice, and a zwieback; 6 p.m., four tablespoonfuls of cereal, one or two teaspoonfuls of custard, and one-half to one ounce of milk.

"Some days she will not taste her milk. This morning at 6 a.m. she took four ounces before she nursed and seemed to enjoy it.

"Can you suggest any way of geting her to drink her milk? She has not started to creep but pulls herself up. She has no teeth."

SMALL CHANGES DESIRABLE

There are no very drastic changes to be suggested but it is possible that even small ones will be effective.

Give all orange juice at one feeding, say three ounces at 8 a.m. and none at 4 p.m. The zwieback should be included with the 2 p.m. meal. That may easily be taking the edge off baby's 6 p.m. appetite.

Give the custard also at 2 p.m. which meal will then be, vegetables, egg yolk, zwieback and custard. Offer no milk at that time.

If your milk is very rich in cream skim most of it before boiling. Rich milks are very often inhibiting to a good appetite, especially in hot weather when we do not need such rich and heating foods.

If she takes her milk better before the solid foods offer it then otherwise feed first and finish with the milk. Give it by cup instead of bottle. That may help. Use several ounces of the milk over the cereal, as well as cooking it in milk. Baby will get a satisfactory amount without forcing.

Omit the cod liver oil. That is not necessary from June to September in any climate. Give the baby sunbaths every day and give them in the nude. Our leaflet on "Summer Sunbaths" will be helpful, and when you are asking for it ask also for, "Increasing the Child's Consumption of Milk," and enclose with your request to this department a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Uncle Wiggily's Christmas Tree

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Uncle Wiggily was falling down very fast in his clothes basket airship, the balloons of which had been punctured by some cute, but mischievous little robin birds. Without the balloons to hold up the rabbit gentleman's airship it started to fall and he fell with it.

But that wasn't the worst. For as he was falling he saw another flock of birds flying toward him and he thought they were going to stick their beaks in more of the balloons so he would fall faster and harder. He was hoping he might fall into an evergreen, or Christmas tree, as the soft branches of that would make it easier for him.

'But one never knows what will happen,' said Uncle Wiggily as he watched the flock of birds flying toward his falling airship. "I may even turn upside down like a pancake."

But nothing like that happened. And before the rabbit gentleman was so near to the earth that he was in danger of being bumped all at once he saw a number of large birds fluttering around his clothes basket airship.

"I beg of you," said Uncle Wiggily, earnestly, "please do not bite a hole in any more of my balloons or I don't know what will happen."

"We aren't going to bite holes," sang a large daddy robin. "We are sorry for what has happened and we are going to save you."

His airship landed

"Then," said Uncle Wiggily, "you will have to work fast. For I am falling fast and I will soon bump the ground. That is unless I can fall into a Christmas tree."

"Have no fear. We will save you!" croaked a big, black crow bird who liked to sing: "Caw! Caw! Caw!" which sounded like "Ha! Ha! Ha!" so that many thought the crow was laughing.

While Uncle Wiggily was stuffing under him as many soft cushions as he could get hold of, all of a sudden, the flock of birds fluttered around the clothes basket airship and took hold of the edges in their claws and beaks. There were many birds.

Some were robins, some sparrows, some brown thrush birds; others were blue birds, grackels, purple martins, starlings, warblers, crows, woodpeckers, and flickers. About the only birds who did not flock around to save Uncle Wiggily and his airship from the falling were the owls. These birds, as a rule, only come out at night, for they cannot see well in the daytime. But if Uncle Wiggily had fallen at night I am sure the owls would have helped to save him.

For that is why the birds flocked around the rabbit gentleman in his airship—to save him and not to pick more holes in his balloons, as he feared One mother robin said:

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, we are so sorry for what happened. You see many of our little robin birds are flying to-day for the first time. They went up in the air and when they saw your ship they didn't know what it was. It was new to them."

"I know," said Uncle Wiggily. "Some of the little robins thought my red balloon was an apple, some thought a yellow balloon was an orange and one thought a purple balloon was a big grape. They wanted to taste the fruit, so they stuck their beaks in my balloons and I began to fall down. For I need many balloons to hold up my airship and when too many are punctured, down I fall."

"But you shall not fall far, Uncle Wiggily," said the mother robin. "When my little birds came flocking home and told their father and me what had happened—how they had picked holes in your balloons—I called Mr. Robin and he and I gathered all our bird friends to save you."

"You came just in time," said Uncle Wiggily. "And you had better begin to save me now, for I am close to the ground"

"Save Uncle Wiggily! Save Uncle Wiggily!" chirped Mrs. Robin. Then more birds took hold of the clothes basket with their claws and beaks and by fluttering hard with their wings they stopped the airship from falling so fast. Even some of the little robin children who had picked holes in the balloons helped save the rabbit gentleman.

But with all the fluttering of their wings the birds could not altogether hold the airship up. It was falling more slowly now, though, and Uncle Wiggily knew he would not be bumped very hard.

Then, all of a sudden there came a gust of wind. It tore the airship away from the birds and blew it to one side. But now it was over a clump of evergreen trees toward which it fell.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily is going to be hurt after all!" said Mrs. Robin.

"No, I shall be all right! I am going to fall into a Christmas tree," said the rabbit gentleman. A moment later his clothes basket airship, with him in it, landed in the top of a big green Christmas tree.

And if the pussy cat will stop throwing mothballs at the flying night bat when it is catching mosquitoes, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's queer adventure.

DIVORCED AND WED SAME DAY

Reno, Nev., Aug. 10.—Captain John Wanamaker Jr., of the wealthy Wanamaker family of Philadelphia, divorced Mrs. Pauline Disston Wanamaker here to-day and a few minutes later procured a license to wed Mrs. Elizabeth Pelz Warburton, divorced wife of his cousin, C. Edgerton Warburton of Philadelphia.

The wedding ceremony was performed yesterday evening by Judge Thomas F. Moran, who presided also at the divorce trial.

Captain Wanamaker charged desertion in obtaining dissolution of his marriage to Mrs. Wanamaker. In his testimony he alleged that Mrs. Wanamaker deserted him in August, 1924, at which time he said, she refused to join him and other members of the family at a home in Scotland, and went instead to a summer resort on the coast of France.

According to the evidence, Mrs. Wanamaker persisted in her desertion for over a period of two years, until she finally became insane.

The Wanamakers married in Newport, R.I., in 1917 and have two children, John Rodman Wanamaker and Fernanda Pauline Wanamaker. The court approved an arrangement whereby Wanamaker will pay $27,500 a year for the support and maintenance of Mrs. Wanamaker and an additional $10,000 a year for the support of the children.

OUT OUR WAY —By WILLIAMS

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

Two young men were crossing the street and for a moment she thought one of them was Dan. He wasn't. The youth turned his head and she saw he was a stranger.

A glance at her wrist told Cherry that it was still too early to expect her husband. Not yet 12.30. She took another turn to the end of the block and back again. The street was filling gradually with the noonday crowd. Business men hurrying from offices. Tall girls, slim girls, fat girls. All of them appeared to be wearing new fall finery. On their way no doubt to meet "dates." Youths who would presently meet these girls or others like them joined the procession. There were older women, errand boys, men with faces worn dull by years of routine. Yet all of these faces showed relief. The half holiday had brought an air of bustle and festivity to the street.

Still Dan Phillips was nowhere in sight.

* * *

Cherry searched eagerly from left to right. The crowd swirled past and new faces came into view constantly. It was after 12.30. Cherry took her post directly beside the library entrance and decided to wait there. The alarming possibility came to mind that in this crowd she might miss Dan. She had never failed to meet him before. To-day of all days that would be a calamity!

She stood on tiptoe peering over the crowd. Nobody seemed to notice her and she felt as though she were at the centre of a merry-go-round. The men and women hurrying past might have been carried by some mechanical force.

Twelve thirty-five, 12.40, one o'clock. There were fewer pedestrians now. Cherry's eyes were dark with alarm. "I should have reminded him!" she told herself. "I should have telephoned."

Still she would not give up hope that Dan would come.

It was twenty minutes after one—almost an hour past the time she and Dan were to meet. Cherry raised one hand and brushed the mist from her eyes. No use to wait longer. No use to hope against hope that the next moment would bring him. He wasn't coming. He had forgotten about her!

Suddenly Cherry felt a hand on her arm. She whirled, her face lighting happiness. "Oh—!" she exclaimed and her lips moved to form Dan's name.

But it wasn't Dan Phillips who smiled down at her. Max Pearson stood there. He said easily, "Hail, stranger. Where've you been keeping yourself?"

Cherry's reply was a confused murmur. She heard Pearson speak again, without knowing what the words were. She heard him say something about lunch and was surprised to find herself walking down the street beside him, entering the dining-room of the Hotel Wellington.

They sat at a small table. Cherry turned her head and suddenly her eyes focussed on a figure across the room. For a moment the figure blurred and the room swam before her. Then the outlines steadied themselves. It was—oh, it was!

Dan was sitting at a table not a dozen yards away, leaning forward in earnest conversation, and the woman facing him was Brenda Vail.

CHAPTER XLII

For an instant Cherry thought the words would not come. Her hands, twisting together and hidden by the table, were like ice. She felt as though some terrible, chilling force had taken possession of her. She could not speak. She could not move, but sat there staring down at her plate.

Over and over in her brain the words pounded. "Dan—and that woman!" Here! Dan—and Brenda Vail!"

It was only a moment but for Cherry that moment was a lifetime. She raised her eyes then and somhow found her voice. She said limply, "I'm afraid I can't stay for lunch, Max. A sudden headache—I get them sometimes. If you'll call a cab for me—"

Pearson was all solicitude. If he had noticed the couple so near to them he gave no sign. He said a few words to the waiter, helped Cherry into her coat and then they were outside on the street.

A taxicab drew to the curb in answer to Pearson's signal. Max would have entered and driven home with her but Cherry shook her head. She sank far back against the cushioned seat as the cab pulled into the street. Blessed relief to be alone!

How the dreary afternoon passed she could not have told. She reached the apartment, climbed the stairs. Huddled in a little heap on the davenport she lay staring across the room. Cherry did not weep. She did not even try to think. The ache in her heart—the ache that twisted and flayed and tortured her—was like a physical pain. It was so new and so terrifying.

The grey kitten climbed to the davenport, nestled beside Cherry and waited for caresses that did not come. Sunshine faded from the patches of sky outside the living-rpom window. Footsteps sounded on the stairs and then died away. In the apartment overhead a radio orchestra played a brassy "torch song."

The whole situation was apparent now to Cherry. Oh, yes! She had been blind not to see it before. Dan's sudden coldness. His frequent absences. How could she have failed to understand what was happening?

* * *

The shadows in the room grew darker and outlines were lost in the grey light. Dan came at last. For an instant he stood silhouetted against the hall light. Then he touched the wall switch and the table lamp glowed warmly.

Dan said, "Hello," and dropped his topcoat into a chair. He went to the kitchen, filled a tumbler with water and drank it. Returning, he looked at the girl curiously.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Don't you feel well?"

Cherry raised her eyes. "I'm all right."

Phillips seemed satisfied. He began to whistle softly, sank into his favorite chair and unfolded a newspaper. There was silence that was not broken until Cherry spoke.

Her voice sounded flat and unnatural. She said, "Dan, I waited nearly an hour—"

"Waited? It's no later than the time I usually get here."

I mean at noon. At the library. Don't you remember we were to have lunch together?"

The young man's face was hidden by the newspaper. "Sorry," he said. "I forgot. Couldn't have made it anyhow because I was tied up on a story. They're short a couple men again at the office."

So he chose to lie about it! He thought he could deceive her with the usual excuses. Cherry sat up stiffly, her hands clasped, fingers pressing into the flesh.

"I—I saw you, Dan!" she said.

The newspaper dropped and Phillips regarded her curiously. "What are you talking about?"

"I saw you—at the Wellington. You were having lunch there with Brenda Vail."

"Oh, you did!"

Their eyes met like swords, pointed and flashing. Cherry could not endure it. She could not face the anger and hostility that burned in Dan's gaze. He must hate her to look at her that way!

"All right," Dan said evenly. "Suppose I was at the Wellington! Suppose I did lunch with Brenda. Is there anything criminal in that?"

Cherry spoke as though she had not heard him. "All these nights," she said slowly, "when I thought you were at the office—special assignments—extra work—you were with her then, weren't you? You've been seeing her for weeks. Why didn't you tell me the truth? Why didn't you say you didn't love me any more? Why did you have to lie—"

"Wait a minute!" Phillips interrupted. "You haven't any reason to complain and you can't say I lied. I did work on a story to-day until one o'clock. If you wanted to know where I've been spending my evenings why didn't you ask? You haven't seemed much interested in anything I've done for a long while.

Tears filled the girl's eyes. She tried to brush them away. "You—lied to me!" she went on chokingly. "You lied to-day and you've probably done it before. It was our wedding anniversary—and I thought we were going to be so happy. I had everything planned! You couldn't even remember after you'd promised to meet me!"

"And I tell you I didn't lie! You haven't made things any too agreeable around here lately. All your talk about not having any money and how hard you have to work! That's pleasant to listen to, isn't it? Brenda understands—"

* * *

The girl was on her feet, anger flaming in her cheeks. "Don't you dare talk to me about that woman! Don't you dare! She's a horrible, shameless old vampire. That's what she is—a vampire! Talking about the play you were going to write together when all she wanted was to have you making love to her. You know it's true—don't try to tell me it isn't!"

"You can't talk that way about Brenda!"

"Oh, can't I? Your wife doesn't make any difference but this wonderful Brenda—! Cherry's emotion was too much for her. Her words broke off and she turned away.

Phillips said coldly, "If you're ready to listen maybe you'll let me get in a word or two. I suppose this is all further proof that I'm the world's prize failure. You've said it a dozen times before but when you try to drag Brenda Vail into it—!"

Cherry whirled about. "I told you not to mention that name!" she warned. "Can't you stop thinking of her even for a minute? Well, then—go to her! I never want to see your face again. I wish I'd never married you! I wish—I wish I were dead!" Her voice fell on a broken sob.

"So you wish you'd never married me! Don't forget it was your idea. I didn't ask you to marry me! Have you forgotten that?"

Cherry cried out as though at a blow. "You could say—that!" she gasped. "I suppose you never loved me at all? You made me believe you did. You made me think you wanted to marry me—oh, I wish you'd go away. I wish you'd leave me alone—!"

She sank to the davenport and buried her head in the cushions. Cherry was weeping uncontrolledly now. Her shoulders rose and sank with great shaking sobs.

For a moment Phillips stood looking down at her. Then he crossed the room, picked up his coat and hat. An instant later the hall door opened and shut.

Cherry did not know how long she lay there. She knew Dan had gone but she did not stir. Gradually her sobbing became more quiet and then stopped altogether. She got to her feet, crossed the room and fumbled mechanically in a bureau drawer for a fresh handkerchief. Her eyes were swollen and red. Cherry caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror and was shocked for an instant because she did not recognize herself.

Upstairs the radio was still turned on and a man was singing. A crooner whose weekly salary was fabulous. The song was a popular one and Cherry had heard it often before. The words were appropriate:

"After I was sold on all the tales
you told
Didn't you let your kisses turn from hot to cold?
Was that the human thing—"

The song ended on a dissonant note. Perhaps the owner of the radio disliked the ballad or perhaps he was only leaving the apartment to go to a belated dinner. At any rate the radio was silenced.

It was curious how that silence affected the working of Cherry's mind. She was still dazed by the unreality of what had happened. Dan had come and gone away. She was never going to see him again. Dan was leaving her for Brenda Vail.

The words shaped themselves in her consciousness. She said them over to herself and yet they meant nothing. Dan was gone. He wasn't coming back again. He didn't love her—had never loved her.

Cherry began to move about the room nervously. She picked up the newspaper Dan had thrown aside, folded it and placed it on the table. She straightened the cushions on the couch.

"But I can't stay here," she told herself suddenly. "I've got to do something—go away. I've got to make plans!"

All at once she was consumed with feverish energy. She pulled on her hat and coat, caught up gloves. Then she was hurrying, almost running down the stairs.

"Telephone," was the word that repeated itself in Cherry's mind. Yes, she must find a telephone.

There was one on the table in the entrance hall but she swept past it. Out in the night the cold wind struck her face and blew her coat back. She bent against the wind, walking rapidly.

It was almost an hour later that Cherry stood in the telephone booth of a corner drug store. She gave a number, waited for the answering voice. It came at last.

"Max!" the girl cried eagerly. "I've got to see you!"

In both Canada and the United States the use of electricity for heating hotbeds is rapidly gaining favor and in addition to producing early vegetables great advantage is claimed for the method in raising flowering plants and shrubs from cuttings and root divisions.

LOAN CONVERSION FIGURES REPORTED

Canadian Press

London, Aug. 10—The success of Great Britain's war loan conversion is strikingly illustrated in to-day's official report on the government's revenue and expenditure for last week, from which it is learned that nearly £1,600,000,000 out of the total £2,084,994,000 was converted by July 31.

The report includes an item of expenditure, "cash bonuses, £15,703,000." When the government announced its conversion scheme on June 30, under which 5 per cent securities could be exchanged for a 3½ per cent issue, bondholders were offered a cash bonus of £1 for each £100 if they gave notice of intention to convert before July 31.

While no official announcement of the progress of the scheme was issued to-day, London financial houses were quick to observe the cash bonus item, multiplying it by 100 to find the figure converted in July.

FAULTS DEFEAT BERKELEY BELL

Baseline Errors Play Big Part in His Defeat in Rye Tennis By McCauliff

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 10—An epidemic of double faulting removed Berkeley Bell from the eastern grass court tennis championships yesterday but other favorites marched into the third round.

Bell made at least a score of double faults in his match with Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N.Y., eight of them in one set, and was eliminated, 1-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Advancing into the third round with McCauliff were Cliff Sutter, New Orleans; Manuel Alonso, former Spanish Davis Cup player; Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles; Jack Tidball, Hollywood; Oddie Jacobs, Baltimore; Wilbur Coen, Kansas City; Gregory Mangin, Newark; John McDiarmid, Fort Worth; Elbert Lewis, Los Angeles, and Edward Burns, New York.

Sutter had no trouble with Martin Buxby, University of Texas, 6-3, 6-2, and Alonso disposed of Henry Culley, Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3. Stoefen eliminated the Charlotte, N.C., star, Clayton Lee Burwell, 6-4, 6-4, while Tidball disposed of the veteran J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N.J., 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

MANGIN IN FORM

Mangin was in excellent form as he whipped Richard F. Murphy, Utica, N.Y., 6-1, 7-5, and Coen defeated Keith Werner, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-3.

Lewis won from Harold McGuffin, New York, 6-3, 6-1, and Jacobs from Joe Coughlin, Stanford, 6-2, 6-4. Burns won the hardest-fought match of the day, 6-2, 1-6, 11-9 to conquer Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem.

Virginia Rice, Boston; Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, Stamford, Conn.; Mrs. J. B. Pittman, England; Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, New York, and Mrs. M. V. Hester, New York, all entered the fourth round of women's singles.

BOILING WINS FEATURE RACE

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—With favorites coming home in front in most cases, betters had a disappointing day at the track yesterday afternoon. With few exceptions, prices were short. CLIVE BROOK AT DOMINION

Popular Actor Has Leading Role Opposite C. Colbert in "The Man From Yesterday"

A quick courtship, a quicker honeymoon, and a husband who, even more quickly, disappears from the life of his affectionate wife.

These are some of the ingredients—and there are more just as copiously packed with heart-tugging drama—in "The Man From Yesterday," Paramount's newest offering, featuring Claudette Colbert and Clive Brook. It opened at the Dominion Theatre today.

Both of these fascinating personalities play their parts with a fine eclat. There can be no doubt that they are established favorites with the Victoria town folks who seemed to be living their roles with them at the Dominion Theatre.

Brook is seen as the British Army officer, a role which is not new to him, since he only recently donned the olive-drab in Shanghai Express. He marries a nurse (Miss Colbert) in the hectic last hours of a leave of absence in Paris during a bombing raid. Their impetuous wedding, nevertheless a sincerely romantic one, is suddenly treminated when Brook is called back to the battle front.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The Swiss Alps with a mountain holiday resort was, in effect, transported to British Paramount studios for the filming of dramatic sequences in "Reserved for Ladies," which is now at the Empire Theatre. Leslie Howard, Elizabeth Allan and Benita Hume are featured.

Sleighs were built to duplicate actual Swiss models, and a antice of the mountain republic was employed to watch the work so as to assure absolute accuracy. A new secret preparation was used for snow.

The picture has an all-British cast, which includes Leslie Howard, George Grossmith and Benita Hume.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Listed in the forefront of Ann Harding's pet aversions is that form of exaggerated flattery known as boot-licking.

This aversion to insincere sweetness is one characteristic which helps Ann Harding to fit perfectly into the role she plays in her latest staring picture, RKO-Pathe's "Westward Passage," now showing at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

"You see," Ann explains, "I was once on the receiving end of an intensive boot-licking campaign.

"My father was commandant of an army camp, and more than one ambitious young officer sought preference by courting the general's daughter. Everything I said was witty. Everything I did was wonderful.

"That I was considered blind enough not to see through such shoddy wiles always struck me as an insult to my intelligence. I can assure you that my friends were not recruited from this minority, but from the great rank and file of rough-and-ready frankly spoken men typical of army standards."

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Alan Mowbray, featured with Bebe Daniels and Warren William in "The Honor of the Family," new First National comedy melodrama now playing at the Playhouse Theatre, is the actor who played the role of George Washington in George Arliss's most recent success, "Alexander Hamilton." Mowbray, a young man, spent weeks in study and research before he brought the character of Washington to the screen. More than three hours each day were required for him to apply the makeup that made him so believable in the role. In "The Honor of the Family" he plays a dashing young adventurer involved in the amusing intrigue that made Balzac's play so famous. Lloyd Bacon directed the picture.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Victoria picture-goers will have their last opportunity to see Universal's mile-a-minute auto racing thriller, "Racing Youth," at the Columbia Theatre to-night.

Frank Albertson wears the goggles, helmet and racing jumper in the film and June Clyde is the highly decorative and talented heroine. Slim Summerville, Louise Fazenda, Arthur Stuart Hull, Forrest Stanley and Otis Harlan complete the cast, which Vin Moore has directed.

The story concerns the romantic and exciting situations that arise when two unscrupulous business men attempt to wrest control of a huge automobile factory from its young heiress-owner by blocking her car out of the vital race.

ROMANO THEATRE

A happy choice of deft comedy and sophistication, ably directed and acted, make for an exceptionally entertaining film at the Romano Theatre where RKO-Radio Pictures' "Consolation Marriage" is now showing.

Based on a modernized and hitherto unexploited phase of the marriage problem, the picture expounds the unusual thesis that love is a matter of habit and environment and that it can come to any young couple, anytime.

Briefly, the film tells the amusing story of two young persons, disappointed in love, who contract a loveless marriage for the sole purpose of forgetting their romantic pasts.

FILMS SHOWN TO TO SOOKE VISITORS

Professor A. L. C. Atkinson of the University of Saskatchewan, who is spending his vacation at Sooke, has entertained guests and visitors at Sooke Harbor House with moving pictures showing the most interesting parts of the British Isles.

A film particularly interesting during the present Empire Conference shows the tests made of a British-made car. The manufacturers of this car not only show the audience the wonderful performance of their product, but take the audience with them around the world, from the snow-clad Swiss mountains to the sands of the Sahara.

PROF. J. C. FIELDS OF TORONTO DIES

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Dr. John Charles Fields, head of the mathematics faculty of the University of Toronto and known throughout the world as a great mathematician, died yesterday at his residence here. He was in his seventieth year.

Recipient of honors from a score of universities and scientific societies throughout the world, Prof. Fields earned prominence in 1906 on publication of his treatise, "Theory of the Algebraic Function of a Complex Variable," a work that received world-wide acclaim.

Born in Hamilton on May 14, 1863, John C. Fields first showed skill in mathematics at the Hamilton Collegiate. Graduating from the University of Toronto, he entered Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, where he received his Ph.D. degree. During his post graduate work at Paris, Goettingen and Berlin, he rapidly gained a leading position as mathematician. He returned to the University of Toronto mathematical faculty as a young man.

Widely known for his advancement or research work, Prof. Fields was for some years president of the Royal Canadian Institute. Both the National Research Council of Canada and the Ontario Research Foundation owe much to the principles advocated by him.

He was also a frequent contributor to mathematical journals and organs of scientific societies.

WILL WELCOME FORMER PASTOR

First United Church to Hear Rev. J. Gibson Inkster on Sunday

Rev. John Gibson Inkster, D.D., pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, Toronto, will be the pulpit guest of First United Church next Sunday, when he will address both services. Dr. Inkster was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church when the congregation erected the spacious edifice now occupied, having been called to Victoria from London, Ont., in 1913. He resigned the pastorate of First Church in 1921 to accept a call from Knox Church of Toronto. He is one of Canada's most widely-known pulpit orators.

In addition to addressing both services on Sunday, Dr. Inkster will give an illustrated lecture at First Church on Monday evening, when his subject will be "Palestine."

Dr. Inkster addressed large congregations on Sunday at Central Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, and on Sunday, August 21, he will be the pulpit guest of First Presbyterian Church, Seattle, where Rev. D. Mark A. Matthews is pastor to one of the largest Presbyterian congregations in the world.

During his journey through western Canada, Dr. Inkster visited many Presbyterian mission districts which are being assisted by Knox Church of Toronto.

SUPPLIES FLOWN TO GOLD MINERS

Relief has been despatched by air to distressed placer mining prospectors on McConnell Creek in the north-eastern section of the province, who were reported some weeks ago to be subsisting on starvation rations.

The McConnell Creek placer field was visited last month by Douglas Lay, resident provincial engineer, using a Canadian Airways plane. Mr. Lay reported to Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, that there were good but not sensational placer mining possibilities in that region. He also reported that a number of men who were working leases taken up by M. J. Brown, would be without food if supplies were not made available.

As a result of co-operation by the gold commissioner at Smithers and the Provincial Police, the destitute miners have been provided for. W. Parlee, of Edmonton, father of one of the men, guaranteed the cost of air transportation, and a plane loaded with supplies was recently sent to McConnell Creek. Sufficient food was taken in to permit the entire party to walk out over the trail without hardship. It is assumed that they already have started on their long hike either to Fort St. James or Hazelton.

"The Idea of a University" will be the subject of an address by Professor H. T. J. Coleman of the University of British Columbia before the Victoria Rotary Club to-morrow noon in the Empress Hotel.

GETS CHEMICAL POST IN BRITAIN

H. R. Lyle Streight of New Westminster Visiting Alderman Litchfield Here

Student of U.B.C. and Gained Degree at Birmingham University

H. R. Lyle Streight, B.A., M.A., formerly of New Westminster, but now of Liverpool, is spending a few days in Victoria visiting his uncle, Alderman H. O. Litchfield, before returning to the United Kingdom, where he has secured a post in the Imperial Chemical Industries, one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world. As a student in the University of British Columbia, Mr. Streight had a very successful record, which culminated in winning the 1851 Exhibition scholarship, which enabled him to further his studies as a chemical engineer at Birmingham University, where he gained the degree of Ph.D., and also to put in a year at Oxford. The headquarters of the Imperial Chemical Industries, with which Mr. Streight will be associated, are at Liverpool.

HOMELESS MEN PLAN RECEIVED

Adoption of Vancouver Scheme to Be Urged on Premier Bennett Shortly

The communication of the Committee on Homeless Men of the Vancouver Council of Social Agencies, outlining a nation-wide plan to provide for homeless men of Canada, has been received in Victoria. Its adoption is being urged on the federal, provincial and municipal governments and a copy will be sent to Premier Bennett so as to reach him by August 15. Copies have also been sent to the larger Canadian cities.

The aimless migration of men, women and children, mostly by means of freight trains, is recognized as a serious problem by those responsible for the plan. The committee thinks this migration cannot be stopped by legislation or force and that the only way to curtail it is to remove the incentive, which they consider comes from a belief that certain large centres of population offer greater relief advantages than others.

Standardized treatment throughout Canada of persons registered under a federal scheme is recommended by the Vancouver body and people must stay within their areas to benefit under the plan.

Other features are federal registration of homeless men, not later than the first week in September, and the establishment of central application bureaus in all cities under government authority to which all homeless men, local and transient, must apply before they can receive relief of any kind.

In formulating its recommendations the committee after weeks of consultation announced that it was guided by three considerations:

That the majority of homeless men dealt with are at present not of the vagrant or hobo class, and in normal times work whenever work is available;

That the proportion of professional beggars and derelicts is small, but that there is a real danger of members of the first class becoming members of the second;

That the first class are integral parts of our economic structure and that the second are social and economic liabilities.

AUTO SHOW TO BE ATTRACTION

Plans For Displays at Exhibition Completed By Dealers

Eight car dealers have taken space already for the auto show at the Provincial Exhibition, it was announced following a meeting of the Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association yesterday when arrangements for the show were completed.

The latest developments in automobiles will be covered by the show, including such improvements as free-wheeling, floating power, synchronized gears and others, as well as the new interior fixings and decorations.

L. de S. Duke, president of the association, and Major P. T. Stern, secretary, reported that from all indications the show would measure up this year to the fine standard it has set on previous occasions, when the automobile display is always a big attraction.

The exhibitors so far are: National Motors Limited, Ford automobiles and trucks; Begg Motor Company Limited, Plymouth and Dodge cars; A. W. Carter Limited, Hudson and Essex cars; H. A. Davie Limited, Buicks; Cecil Eve, Pontiac cars; Jamieson Motors Limited, Studebaker and Rockne; Thomas Plimley Limited, Packard, Chrysler and De Soto, and The Motor House, Chevrolets.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Lang Pak Tim, Chinese, was fined $20 in the City Police Court this morning for driving to the common danger on Gorge Road.

Walter William Rowe, charged with a statutory offence, was formally committed for trial by Acting Magistrate C. J. Prior in the City Police Court this morning.

Arrangements were made at the City Hall this morning for a delegation from the Chamber of Commerce to meet the parks committee to discuss removal of boulevard trees. This interview will replace a conference which had been arranged between the full council and the delegation.

Ministers of Agriculture, their deputies and deans of agriculture throughout Canada, will meet in Toronto on August 29 to form a National Advisory Committee on agricultural services. This organization will endeavor to eliminate duplications in services and bring about a uniformity of work in agricultural departments of the various provinces.

To review the evidence submitted recently at the inquiry into charges made against Chief Delmar Hodnett of the police force, the Esquimalt Police Commission will hold a private meeting this evening at the Municipal Hall. It has been proposed by Reeve Albert Heald to turn the matter over to the Attorney-General after the case has been reviewed.

The Lieutenant-Governor paid a visit to the Red Cross workshop, 584 Johnson Street, this afternoon, where he was received by members of the Red Cross Society and the staff. His Honor showed the keenest interest in the work being undertaken by the disabled veterans. He was accompanied by his secretary, A. M. D. Fairbairn.

British Columbians like the best cuts of beef obtainable, according to statistics furnished by the Department of Agriculture to-day. This province consumes one-fourth of all the red ribbon beef produced in Canada, nearly five times as much first-class beef as the so-called blue ribbon or second cuts. Ontario is the only province which exceeds British Columbia in consumption of first-class beef, the table shows.

Rev. F. E. Church and members of the Metropolitan United Church yesterday held a reception at Spencer's dining-room for Rev. Percy Gardner Price, head of the Central Tokio Mission, who is on a visit to Canada. Mrs. Price, Miss Taka Price, Rev. Zentaro Ono, a delegate from Japan to the United Church of Canada, and a party of Japanese students who will study in Toronto, were also present.

The Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia have gone on record as favoring the completion of a highway from the Alberta boundary to Prince Rupert at the earliest possible moment and have asked the provincial government to place this project first on their building programme, it was learned at the Parliament Buildings to-day. They also wish a new bridge across the Nechako River in the vicinity of Fort Fraser on the Fort George-Hazelton Highway. This bridge would replace the present ferry and shorten the distance by some three and one-half miles.

A. E. MacLaurin, Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian Council of Boys' and Girls' Clubwork, is in the city to-day on business connected with British Columbia junior clubs. Mr. MacLaurin states that despite the reduced appropriations in several provinces for this work, last year showed an increase in the number of clubs, there now being 1,272, as compared with 1,235 in 1930. The total membership of Canadian clubs now—is approximately 25,000. Practical farming is taught boys and girls throughout Canada, through the council's activities, including agriculture, livestock and dairying.

TORONTO GETS BIG TELESCOPE

C. D. Gibb of Newcastle-on-Tyne, in Charge of Dunlop Memorial, Here To-day

Seventy-four-inch Instrument Slightly Larger Than One at Saanich

Toronto will shortly boast an astrophysical telescope that will be slightly larger than the one established on Little Saanich Mountain, near here, it was learned with the arrival in the city to-day of C. D. Gibb, director of Sir Howard Grubb, Parsons & Company of Newcastle-on-Tyne, builders of the instrument.

Mr. Gibbs, who is accompanied by F. J. Bell of Toronto, Canadian representative of the company, is staying at the Empress Hotel.

The Toronto University Observatory will be known as the Dunlop Memorial Observatory. The construction of this telescope has been under way for about a year. It will be built on a hill approximately 1,000 feet above sea level.

VISITED OBSERVATORY

Messrs. Gibb and Bell this morning went out to Saanich to examine the 72-inch telescope which is in operation at the astrophysical observatory here. As compared with the 72-inch telescope here, the Toronto observatory will be equipped with a 74-inch instrument.

At the present time the local telescope is the second largest in the world, being exceeded in size by Mount Wilson, near Pasadena, Calif., which boasts a 100-inch telescope.

A 200-inch astrophysical telescope, it is understood, is being planned for southern California, but it is reported that trouble is being experienced in obtaining the mirrors.

Miss Kay Williams, organizing secretary of the European astronomical tour party now in the city, says the largest telescope in Great Britain is a 36-inch one at Greenwich Observatory. A 36-inch instrument has just been completed at Edinburgh to replace a 30-inch one there.

CALGARY PARKS HEAD VISITOR

Ald. Edith Patterson Inspects Victoria Parks With Superintendent

Alderman Edith Patterson of Calgary was a visitor to Victoria yesterday, and was shown around the city's parks system by Superintendent W. H. Warren.

She is the chairman of the parks commission in Calgary and was particularly struck with the manner in which relief labor had been utilized in improving Victoria's parks. She expressed admiration for Beacon Hill.

She will visit Everett, Spokane and Vancouver in the course of her tour, paying particular attention to the development of playgrounds.

PROTEST NEW WATER CHARGE

Auto Camp Proprietors Ask Relief From Change in Service Rate

Protests against the alteration in the water rates under which a separate service charge is made against each connection when there are more than one in a building are on file at the City Hall following the sending out of water bills for July when the change went into effect.

Auto camp proprietors find they are mainly affected by the change, having to pay the $1 service charge for the connection to each camp. One case was cited in which the water bill for an auto camp increased threefold under the new system. One apartment house proprietor also protested.

The mayor has the matter under consideration.

CPL. VAINES RIFLE WINNER

Defeats Lt. R. A. Sweet, Hamilton, in Thrilling Shoot-off For Ottawa Prize

Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, Aug. 10.—In one of the most thrilling shoot-offs these ranges have ever seen, Cpl. L. S. Vaines, Montreal, to-day defeated Lieut. R. A. Sweet, Hamilton, member of the 1932 Canadian Bisley team, for individual honors in the Bankers' Match at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meeting.

Both had scored 99 out of a possible 100 in the match proper, and to-day met on the firing line to settle the argument. The prize was the Patterson Cup and C.C.R.A. silver medal.

Five shots were allotted to the two men, as was customary, but they still remained tied after the five shots had been fired, and it required eight more rounds, fire shot for shot, before Vaines could score a bulls eye against his opponent's inner. He scored 62 to Sweet's 61.

Sergt.-Major T. Trainor, Toronto, defeated Pte. P. B. Appleyard, also of Toronto, for individual honors in the Borden Match. Both had tie scores yesterday, and fired ten rounds rapid fire to-day to break up the match. Trainor's score of 43 was seven points higher than that of his opponent.

To Lieut. S. Johnson, Wayne, Alta., a tyro, goes the honor of winning the first match of the meeting outright. In the Macdonald Brier, one of the richest events of the meeting, Johnson scored a double possible at 300 and 600 yards to win. He gathers in a D.R.A. silver medal and $100 in cash for his win.

CLEARER SKIES FOR SCIENTISTS

Members of European Party Expect to Get Observations Before They Leave

Informal Meeting This Afternoon For Discussion of Astronomical Questions

With clear weather prevailing to-day, the visiting European astronomers, at least those who are not otherwise engaged, hope to obtain a better view of the celestial objects in the skies before to-morrow, when the party is scheduled to leave for Seattle, en route to California.

Sir Frank Dyson, Dr. H. Knox-Shaw, director of Radcliffe Observatory, Oxford, England, and president of the Royal Astronomical Society, and other members of the visiting party, also Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here, will be dinner guests of Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Fordham Johnson at Government House.

It is expected that those who are not attending the Government House dinner will make another evening visit to the Saanich observatory. Dr. Plaskett has made it clear that the facilities at the observatory are available at any time for the use of the visitors.

For the first time since their arrival in the city the members of the party were left to their own resources this morning and spent the time in shopping and completing arrangements for departure.

This afternoon the visitors returned to the Saanich astrophysical observatory for an informal discussion. A review of their work is being given by the leading astronomers and Dr. J. S. Plaskett and members of the observatory staff will contribute to the discussions. Tea will be served by the local centre of the Astronomical Society of Canada.

SAW BETA CYGNI

Weather conditions were unfavorable for observation when the astronomers visited the Saanich observatory yesterday evening.

Some of the more persistent of the visitors obtained a fleeting view of Beta Cygni through the drifting clouds. With the unavoidable cancellation of the telescopic programme owing to poor visibility the evening was spent in the discussion of astronomical subjects.

"MOPPING UP" SCENES REMINISCENT OF FRANCE

Rifle, bayonet, clouds of gas, as grim soldiers stalked through the settlement of "bonus squatters" on lower Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C. Fleeing bonuseers, recognizing all too well the odds against them, fled before the bayonets, holding handkerchiefs over their faces, stumbling over the wreckage of their shanties.

LIGHT OF BURNING CAMP FLOODS NIGHT SKY

Casting a weird glare over the sky across the Anacostia River from Washington, D.C., row after row of the abandoned bonus shacks went up in flames as soldiers stalked through the ruins attempting to rescue government property and hounding out the few stragglers who attempted to remain.

Daily Health Service

Increasing Number Of Aged Adds To Health Importance

Understanding of Changes Natural in Elder Persons Aid to Happiness

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Although 100 years of life is possible to human beings, only thirty people in 3,000,000 reach that age. And more than two-thirds of the persons who do reach that age are women.

The reason for this latter fact is that women are usually less exposed to accident and infection and, what is more important, are more apt to lead temperate lves.

Census figures from Great Britain show that the average number of persons more than 100 in the British Isles is about 100, and that eighty of this number are women.

These figures are not absolutely accurate since most old people are proud of their age and tend to exaggerate. For example, in nearly every census, more people who give their ages as over ninety-one are found than people who give their ages as between eighty-five and ninety. British health authorities assume that many jump from eighty-five to ninety-one in a year or two.

However, the span of life is gradually increasing. And in time we may expect to have more and more people above ninety. The chief reason for this remains the rapid decline in death rates for infants.

Thus, a man born in 1854 had a life expectancy of forty years. Now he may reasonably expect to live to be fifty-nine. Having reached the age of sixty, a man's expectancy of life is now fourteen and a half years and a woman's sixteen years.

Since heredity seems to play a large part in longevity, it is conceivable, according to Sir Humphrey Rolleston of England, that encouragement of intermarriage between families that tend to live long would produce stock that tended to live long.

However, such experiments among humans are almost impossible, and this theory must remain largely a matter of conjecture.

One of the real problems we have to face is to make the life of the aged person a happier and healthier one. They must realize their own shortcomings in regard to strength and ability to throw off disease, while those around them should always take into consideration the changes which come with advanced age.

If older persons observe the simple rules of health, there is no reason why their declining years should not be happy ones.

JOHN CAPONE IN JAILED IN QUIZ

When John Capone, above, twenty-nine-year-old brother of "Scarface Al," was picked up while loitering on a Chicago street corner, he had $4,300 in his pocket. John and Rocco Senna, Al's former bodyguard, who were arrested with him, were turned over to federal authorities now seeking new indictments against Al and 200 henchmen in an alleged $100,000,000 liquor conspiracy.

Oarsmen Capture Spotlight In Olympic Games Competition

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Major League Ball Crowds Hold Up Despite Depression

* * *

Recent Cleveland Game Drew 80,284 for All-time Mark

* * *

Farm System and Golf Partly Blamed for Failure of Minors

BASEBALL seems to be in the throes of repression in the U.S., with one after another of the minor leagues blowing up. Against this, however, some remarkable crowds in the majors have gone on record recently.

Cleveland opened its new stadium with a record-breaking crowd for all time, 80,284. The crowd paid approximately $80,000 to watch the Philadelphia Athletics and Indians do battle, and of this $47,500 went to the home team, $22,500 to the A's, $8,000 to the United Statesc treasury and $2,250 to the American League.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs played before 46,200 on a recent Sunday at home, and on the following Sunday 35,000 paid to see the Cubs play in Brooklyn. That totals up to 81,200.

These three crowds, of course, are unusual, and week-day attendance has fallen off in most major league parks. The Sporting News, recognized as official organ of baseball, says:

"The time has arrived when organized baseball must pool its resources, money, brains and courage to ride out the storm that is sweeping over the minor leagues, three of which were wrecked within two weeks."

* * *

Such a pooling of resources would seem to many commentators to put the game entirely on a commercial basis. When business picks up, surely the minors will come back.

Extraordinary major league crowds seem to prove that the game still is pretty well thought of by John Public. It appears to be up to those who are making money to help those who are not, but a combination of resources would not sound good to the fans and would not improve attendance in cities where people are not interested in the game to the extent of supporting it.

* * *

It is not hard to find folks who blame the farm system for many of the financial ills baseball suffers. The big league farm team is regarded by the home-towners as a club from the outside which they feel no prideful obligation to support. And, if a big league farm team from some other city wins a minor league flag, the fans backing locally-owned clubs feel that they are competing with major league talent.

There is another side to that argument, too. If local enterprise is not sufficiently interested in baseball projects to own the home town team, should it not be taken for granted that the city is without baseball pride when it affects the pocketbook?

* * *

The great growth of golf undoubtedly has worked enervating effects on baseball in smaller cities. The town angel, who used to shell out for the baseball deficit, is now a big shot at the golf clubs, and he probably finds plenty of opportunity to spend his money for golf. When he wants to see a ball game, perhaps he can jump into his car and drive to the nearest major league city and see a better brand of ball than he could at home.

St. Louis is the southern outpost of the majors, but throughout the south, here are many high class league teams. The soft drawl of scores of major league players is pretty convincing evidence.

* * *

For a time night baseball drew unprecedented crowds in the minor league cities, but the novely of the attraction soon wore off, and very few teams are playing under the floodlights this year. Baseball is a game to be played by day.

Minor leagues hitherto regarded as financially strong have folded this year. But, in the last couple of years, so have a few U.S. banks. Maybe both the leagues and the banks will come back some happier day.

Hamilton Leanders And Coast Doubles See Action To-day

Leanders, One of Most-feared Crews in Eight-oared Event, Will Stack Up Against University of California, Germany and New Zealand, in Preliminary Heat at Long Beach; Noel DeMille and Ned Pratt, Vancouver Doubles, See First Competition; Hamilton Micmacs Also Perform; Joe Wright Badly Beaten

By ELMER DULMAGE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Los Angeles, Aug. 10—Oarsmen took over the centre of the Olympic stage to-day, moving the focal point of the games down to Long Beach and its new rowing course where the long, frail shells of more than two-score crack crews are ready to be driven down the 2,000-metre salt water runway, specially built for the Olympiad.

And Los Angeles had made up its mind that the race of eight-oared crews to-day in heats and Friday in the final is the most important event of the entire games. Hamilton's Leander eight, whose time of 5 minutes 47 1-5 seconds in Canadian trials, caused a ripple on rowing waters the world over, is pitted against California's Golden Bears, Olympic titleholders, and Germany and New Zealand.

England's eight, the same crew that defeated Oxford and won the Grand Challenge Cup at the Royal Henley regatta, is grouped with Italy, Japan and Brazil, and is expected to coast to a victory. The winners of the heats qualify for the final, the losers have another chance to make the grade, as in all Olympic rowing events.

The Halifax Micmacs, Canada's only four-oared crew at the Olympiad, get into action against the good Italian crew in a heat of the four without cox event, and Noel de Mille and Ned Pratt, Vancouver doubles scullers, also get their initial taste of Olympic competition.

Initial events of the Olympic Games' great five-day rowing programme yesterday saw two winners in each of three classes qualifying for the final, and naturally Bobby Pearce, Hamilton, Olympic singles sculls champion, former winner of the diamond sculls, still for his native Australia, is one of them.

PEARCE LOAFS IN

Big Bob, just breezing along, had no trouble defeating Bill Miller, United States. He finished a length in front in 7 minutes 27 seconds. Bhutz, Germany, withdrew from the heat on account of a slight touch of influenza and an infected tooth.

The other single sculls event saw virtual elimination of Joe Wright Jr., Toronto, who finished third to Leslie Southwood, England, and giant Guillermo Douglas, Uruguay, Wright, who finished fully twenty lengths back of Southwood, get another chance in a bracket with Miller, Buhtz and Douglas. Wright's teammates account for his showing as due to a cramp suffered by the Toronto Argo sculler during the race. The cramp, Wright stated, started in his foot and worked up to his knee just as he had brought his stroke up to twenty a minute. Bob Hunter, Hamilton Leander coach, treated the sculler after the race, and Joe says he will be ready to make a comeback in Thursday's race.

Canada had no crews in the other rowing features yesterday—heats of the fours with cox and pair oars without cox. Polish rowers won a heat in each series, and Italy took the other heat of the four oars, while the great old Oxford Blues, Edwards and Clive, captured pair oars event.

CANADA WINS LACROSSE

Victory in the second of the demonstration lacrosse games with the United States, in the only event of the day at the Olympic stadium itself, was Canada's chief consolation yesterday as Canadian swimmers and boxers met with comparatively small success. The 5 to 4 win by the Canuck all-stars put them on even terms in the two-out-of-three game lacrosse tilt.

Canadian swimmers all found the competition too keen in Tuesday's events. The Japanese, who are pretty good swimmers, captured the 800-metre men's relay in Olympic record time of 9.36 1-5, with United States second, Hungary third, and Canada fourth. The Canadian quartette consisted of George Larsen, Hamilton; George Burrows, Vancouver, and Monroe Bourne and Walter Spence of Montreal.

Spence got into the 400-metre semi-final, but finished fifth behind Buster Crabbe, United States. T. Yokoyama from the land of the rising sun, captured the other semi-final.

Ruth Kerr, Windsor, and Marjorie Linton, Toronto, were eliminated in the 100-metre back stroke event, Miss Kerr placing third in her heat, while Miss Linton was also third in another.

Clare Dennis, however, brought victory to Australia and the Empire in the final of the 200-metres back stroke for women. A sixteen-year-old school girl from Sydney, she broke her own Olympic record and the world record by racing the distance in 3 minutes 6 3-10 seconds.

In the fencing arena individual epee championships went to Italy by the power of the dueling sword of Giancarlo Carnaggala-Medici, known to European fencing aristocracy as "Gentilhomo Milanese"—"gentleman of Milan."

Descendant of a branch of the ancient Medici family of princes, he finished with a tally of nine victories and but one defeat, while Georges Buchard, France, was second, and Carlo Agostoni, Italy, was third.

France won the team epee and team foils, and Italy the individual foils, earlier. Sabre fencing, last division, began to-day.

Summaries of yesterday's events follow:

Two hundred-metre breast stroke (women)—Won by Clare Dennis, Australia; 2, Hipeko Maehata, Japan; 3, Elsie Jacobsen, Denmark; 4, Margery Hinton, Great Britain; 5, Margaret Hoffman, United States; 6, Anne Govednik, United States; 7, Jane Cadwell, United States. METCALFE HAD "LONG COUNT"

Negro Sprinter Was Forced to Run Extra Yard in 200 Metres at Olympics

Photographs Support Metcalfe's Earlier Claim; Several Other Errors

Los Angeles, Aug. 10—Too late for anything to be done about it, photographs came to light yesterday evening to support a contention that Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette negro sprinter, was the victim of a "long count" in the measurement of his starting position in the Olympic 200-metre final, won by Eddie Tolan.

Olympic officials last week discounted this claim.

The pictures, taken from the stands opposite the start, show an error in the "staggered" markers, indicating Metcalfe's starting mark was about a yard too long. Tolan won by about two yards, while George Simpson nosed out Metcalfe for second place.

If such an error actually was made, it put the "lane marker" in the same class with the "lap checker" who compelled the steeplechase boys to run an extra lap, the finish judge who gave the United States a premature sweep in the 110-metre hurdles and the field judges who were watching the pole-vault when a Frenchman made one of his best discus throws.

Veteran Surprises At Rifle Meeting

Fifty-year-old Major Crowe, Guelph, Scores Double Possible at Ottawa

In Three-way Tie For Honors in Walker Cuy Match; Scoring Is High

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Youth will be served, according to many an expert but it remained for Major C. R. Crowe, Guelph, Ont., veteran, to confound the experts at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's annual meeting here yesterday. Major Crowe, one of the "grand old men" of Canadian rifledom, celebrated his fiftieth year of shooting by hanging up a double possible at the 800 and 300-yard ranges of the Walker match yesterday, and ended in the inevitable tie for first place.

Two others, Capt. A. W. Hunt, Winnipeg, and Pte. A. P. Hutchinson, Guelph, achieved the marksman's dream of double-possibles in the same match, and with Major Crowe will shoot off for the D.C.R.A. silver medal.

The Borden match, too, just as every other match since the meet opened Monday, ended in a first-place tie. Sgt.-Major J. Traynor, Toronto, and Pte. C. Appleyard of the same city, finished the grind with scores of 48, two below possible, and they will shoot for the honors.

SCORING IS HIGH

Despite a tricky win, scoring was high again yesterday. In the Walker match, for instance, following the top scorers, there were sixteen scores of 69, one below perfect, and thirty-one scores of 68.

Among the first was included Sgt. T. B. Davies, Vancouver.

The cadets from North St. John, who have been outstanding throughout, added another trophy to their list when they won the United Empire, awarded for highest aggregate scores in the Tyro, MacDougall and Bankers' matches. Queen's Own, Toronto, had the highest team score in the Bankers and were awarded the Aylmergard Cup, while Victoria Rifles, Montreal, won the Victoria Rifles trophy for highest score in the Tyro, MacDougall and Bankers' competitions.

Queen's Own Regiment, Toronto, won the Dundonald snap shooting competition when they outscored Winnipeg Rifles by six points.

The Governor-General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, won the Gzowaki Cup, open to teams of four non-commissioned officers, scoring two points more than Royal Hamilton Light Infantry.

The British challenge shield, one of the prize plums of the meeting, went to Winnipeg Rifles.

According to results announced early to-day, the 48th Highlanders, Toronto, won the Walker Challenge Cup, awarded as team prize in the Walker match, when their team of four men outscored the Victoria Rifles' squad from Montreal, by three points. Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver, were third and Canadian Scottish, Victoria, fourth.

CANADIAN SCOTTISH WINS

The same team also annexed the Kirkpatrick Cup for highest aggregate scores in the MacDougall, Walker and Bankers' competitions. Royal Hamilton Light Infantry were one point behind the 48th and Seaforth Highlanders were third. Canadian Scottish scored a fine win in the Harold L. Borden match, winning the challenge cup with a score of 171, two points higher than that of Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto. The winning team was composed of Capt. D. Fyvie, Sergt. A. E. Ashe, Sergt. J. H. Regan and Sergt. T. W. Hall.

Pay Tribute To Drowned Athlete

As a token of respect to the memory of Wilfred "Buzz" Francis, who was drowned yesterday at Shawnigan Lake, all softball teams engaged in games to-night will observe a two-minute silence at the start of the second inning in each fixture. "Buzz," who pitched for the New Method Laundry, was a popular player in the Victoria and District Softball Association.

TORONTO BOXER SCORES VICTORY

Frank Genovese Whips Argentine Opponent in Olympic Games Competition

Los Angeles, Aug. 10.—Frank Genovese, slugging Toronto lightweight, fought his way with uppercuts to a decision victory yesterday evening over Eduardo Vargas, stocky Argentinian, in the Canadian's first Olympic contest. Genovese made a rousing comeback in the third round to blast out a win over the South American after he had been outpointed in the first two.

Victoriay of the lanky lightweight made up for the defeat earlier yesterday of Jackie Callura, Hamilton flyweight, who dropped a close decision to Lou Salica, United States, and Tony Mancini, Montreal welter, who lost to Bruno Ahlberg, Finland.

Just as long as he depended on flicking his left hand, Genovese's attack was ineffectual against Vargas, but the Argentinian had no defence for the stinging right uppercuts Frank hurled at him in the final round. Genovese met every headlong rush of his aggressive opponent with a straight left, followed with disastrous effect by a right-hand swing that half a dozen times sent Vargas teetering back on his heels.

Five other Canadian boxers get into action for the first time, to-day, all being scheduled to make initial Olympic bids this afternoon.

NANAIMO SOFTBALL

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, Aug. 10.—Nanaimo Motor Levels defeated Ladysmith 9 to 8 yesterday evening in the Knight Cup series for the Midisland softball championship. Ladysmith drove in six runs in the second innings. Nanaimo scored four in the sixth. Seele pitched a good game for the losers.

CANADA WINS SECOND MATCH

Dominion's All-star Lacrosse Team Whips U.S. Squad at Olympics 5 to 4

Canucks Come From Behind to Win; Third and Deciding Game on Friday

Los Angeles, Aug. 10.—Canada's all-star lacrosse team came from behind yesterday and evened at one game each their Olympic Games demonstration series against Johns Hopkins College, reperesentatives in the ancient pastime game.

Canadians won 5 to 4, the same score as was against them Sunday, when the first of the series games was abandoned.

Shaded by the fleet Americans for more than half the contest, the collected proteges of Coach "Grumpy" Spring got together late in the second period and in a drive for victory netted three quick goals, which wiped out a 4 to 2 deficit and put them in the van. Worthy, hard-shooting centre, sniped the tying and winning counters.

The win makes the final game of the series Friday the deciding contest. The teams are not only tied in games won, but in goals scored as well.

GOALIE BRILLIANT

A long-passing game by Johns Hopkins threatened to break down the Canadian defence in the first half, and only the brilliant goaltending of Frank Hawkins and Dick Buckingham's staunch checking held the white-garbed collegians at bay. The Canuck attack lacked cohesion of any sort, most scoring sallies coming on individual rushes that bumped squarely into the strong United States defence.

But when Worthy, "Red" Fraser, Duke Harrison and Matt Rohmer began to race goalwards, passing short and hard, the American guard wilted.

Stude made some remarkable saves near the game's end to keep this quartette from a mounting total. Darrel gave the United States the lead in five minutes of the first half play, shooting at close range after a three-man rush. Harrison tied the count before the period ended on "Red" Fraser's pass.

U.S. IN LEAD AGAIN

Stone gave America the lead again in the second half, and Walter Mercer equalized, before the brilliant United States attack got down to business with a pair of quick goals. Turnbull got the first and Stone the second, the Canadian defence becoming disorganized in the face of the swift-moving rush.

Mercer put Canada in the running with a low shot from twenty feet out that eluded Stude, and Worthy put the finishing touches to the Canadian comeback with two high drives. First he fired after taking Harrison's assist, and he tucked in the winning shot from a few feet outside the goal crease, snaring "Stew" Gilford's pass. The game was rough in stages, Canada drawing eight penalties and United States five.

The teams follow:

United States—Stude, Merriken, Reynolds, Yearly, Weitzel, Lake, Packard, Darrell, Turnbull; Guild, Stone, D. Kelly. Subs: McDorman, Beeler, C. Kelly, Kniep, Stone.

Canada—Hawkins, Buckingham, Mercer, Bergin, Gifford, B. Fraser, Worthy, G. Fraser, Wallace, Rohmer, Gair, Harrison. Subs: Baker, Galbricik, McQuarrie, Paguin, Russell Spring J. Fraser Pelletier.

Chicago Cubs Only Half Game Behind Faltering Pirates

Cubs Turn Back New York 4 to 3, With Rally in Ninth, While Pittsburgh, National League Leaders, Suffer Tenth Straight Defeat; St. Louis Cards Continue Hitting Barrage to Trounce Phillies; Yankees Bolster Lead in American League

The St. Louis Cardinals, it would seem, finally have located the batting punch they mislaid at the close of the 1931 season. There have been many encouraging signs for Manager Gabby Street the last few days. In winning their last four games they showed the best sustained offensive the champions have shown all season.

Yesterday they walloped five Philly pitchers for twenty-five hits to gain an 18 to 13 victory and strengthen their hold on sixth place.

The Chicago Cubs moved to within a half game of the National League lead by nipping the New York Giants, 4 to 3, with a two-run rally in the ninth, while the Pittsburgh Pirates were submitting to their tenth consecutive defeat, a 4 to 0 shutout plastered on them by Huck Betts and the Boston Braves. Harvey Hendrick clouted a double and three singles as Cincinnati tripped Brooklyn, 9 to 8, in ten innings.

YANKS ...STER LEAD

The New York Yankees added another half game to their already impressive American League lead by beating the St. Louis Brown, 5 to 3. Vernon Gomez held the Browns to eight hits. Babe Ruth hit his thirty-second home run.

Washington turned back the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2.

Detroit pounded Boston pitching for an aggregate of twenty-six hits and won both ends of a doubleheader, 5 to 2 and 9 to 7.

One clout by Harvey Walker, Montreal, cost the Baltimore Orioles the decision in the first game of a doubleheader in the International League yesterday, both games of which coincidentally, went ten innings. Walker's homer off Harry Smythe in the tenth gave the Royals a 9 to 7 victory. The second game was purely a mound battle between Cunningham and Pomorski with the former getting a 2 to 1 margin.

About the same time that Walker was winning a game for Montreal, Jimmy Jordan, Jersey City, stepped up to the plate against Toronto and delivered a blow over the left field fence that won for the Skeeters.

Newark and Rochester also fought it out for ten innings, but the Bears won 7 to 6. In a night game, Buffalo won its first victory over Albany in four starts in comparative calm. The Bisons came from behind for a 5 to 3 victory.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston, Aug. 10.—Huck Betts, star right-hander for Boston Braves, handed the Pirates a 4 to 0 shutout yesterday, giving the Braves their third win in a row over the league leaders and the Pirates their tenth straight defeat.

Betts was in rare form and was never in trouble. The four hits obtained by the Pirates were scattered over as many innings.

New York, Aug. 10. — Chicago Cubs got within striking distance of the National League lead, only a half-game behind the wabbling Pittsburgh Pirates, as they came from behind in the ninth inning yesterday to defeat the Giants, 4 to 3.

Up to the last stanza Carl Hubbell had a slight edge in a mound duel with Bud Tinning. But with two out in the ninth and a runner on second, Hubbell dropped Terry's toss to first and then threw wild to the plate and let the tying run score. Woody English then singled to send Bill Herman home with the winning tally.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10. — St. Louis Cardinals made it three straight over the Phillies by pounding out an 18 to 13 victory in a battle of booming base hits yesterday.

The champions hammered five Phillies' pitchers for twenty-five hits, while the Quakers shared the batting spotlight with nineteen bingles off three St. Louis hurlers.

Batteries—Derringer, Carleton, Dean and Mancuso; Holley, Berly, J. Elliott, H. Elliott, Dudley and V. Davis.

Brooklyn, Aug. 10.—Three "ghosts" of the past, Harvy Hendrick, Ernie Lombardi and Babe Herman, rose up to confront the Dodgers yesterday and lead Cincinnati Reds to a ten-inning victory, 9 to 8.

Harvy Hendrick led the Reds' slugging with four hits, scored the tying run in the ninth on a hit by Lombardi and drove in the winning tally in the tenth after Herman, third of the trio of ex-Dodgers, started the winning rally with a pinch single.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, New York Yankees' star southpaw, recorded his nineteenth victory of the season yesterday with the aid of Babe Ruth's thirty-second home run of the season, defeating the Browns, 5 to 3.

Gomez allowed eight hits, two of which were homers by Rick Ferrell and Jim Levey. Ruth clouted his homer in the sixth behind singles by Combs and Sewell to provide the margin of victory. Sewell batted in the other Yankee runs with a double and a fly.

Bob Morrison Eliminated From Canadian Golf Meet

Victoria Player Defeated 4 and 2 By Fred Hoblitzel

Morrison, After Being 1 Down at End of First Eighteen, Has Trouble With His Tee Shots and Passes From National Tournament; Ken Black, Vancouver, Drops Hard Match; Stan Leonard and Jimmy Bell, Other B.C. Players, Advance; Somerville in Convincing Victory

Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, Aug. 10—Sixteen sturdy linksmen, all that are left of an original field of 130-odd, gambled with skill and nerve-stamina to-day as the battle continued for the Canadian amateur golf crown now worn by C. R. (Sandy) Somerville, London, Ont., and Sandy was one of the band, survivor with the others of the first thirty-six-hole round match play Tuesday.

The London silent man remained in the hunt for his fifth title by eliminating Frank Corrigan, Ottawa youth and champion of the district, by an impressive 7 to 6 tally. To-day he meets Bobby Reith, Winnipeg, seventeen, and holder of Manitoba's amateur and open titles. Reith supplied the major upset of the first day's play when he shot two rounds of close-to-par golf to rub out the qualifying-medal winner, Joe Thompson, Toronto.

MORRISON BEATEN

Bob Morrison, Victoria, after being 1 down to Jack Hobitzel, Toronto, in the morning round yesterday, could not match the hot pace set by the eastern veteran in the second eighteen and lost out, 4 and 2. Hoblitzel played par golf, and Morrison had trouble with his tee shots. Morrison was a semi-finalist last year.

Young Ken Black, Vancouver, had a tough battle with E. A. Innes, Montreal, before succumbing, 2 and 1. The match was nip and tuck throughout with the eastern player holding a slight advantage throughout.

Morning tour of the links by Jack Cameron, when the Toronto and Ottawa stalwart steamed around in 68 to give Lambton's tough par 70 the first complete-round trimming it has received during the tourney, and the fading from the picture of the qualifying medal winner, Joe Thompson, Toronto, were highlights yesterday.

CAMERON IS HOT

Cameron's invincible morning play when he shot five birdies and strayed over par three times in his match against Frank Thompson, Toronto veteran, give him a nine-hole margin at the half-way mark. Frank did a bit of par-clipping himself in the afternoon, but Cameron stayed closed by him and won out by 8 and 7.

Among the others of the sixteen who continue along the title trail as the result of wins yesterday, Toronto has five in the money; Montreal, three; Vancouver and London, two each.

Two Vancouver youths, Stan Leonard and Jimmie Bell, stayed in the hunt, while another pair from the Pacific Coast were toppling out. Leonard continued the sensational golf he has been shooting all season to defeat Tommy Calder, Montreal youth, by 5 and 4. Bell and Nicol Thompson Jr., brother of Joe the medalist, fought an even fight that had them square at the eighteenth and twenty-seventh. Smiling Jimmie sprinted from the later mark and won on the home green, 2 up.

Among the survivors, Don Carrick, towering Toronto club-swinger, is the only one, excepting Somerville, who has previously known the feel of the amateur crown upon his brow.

Big Don showed he is fast rounding into his form of other years by beating John S. Lewis, Ontario champion from Brantford, by 3 and 1 after a hard tussle.

Three of the four United States club-swingers who qualified remain in the fight. Will Gunn Jr., Wallingford, Pa., is pitted against a fellow American, Joe Bydolek, Buffalo, N.Y.

In the other matches to-day Jimmie Bell, Vancouver, meets Jack Nash, London; Gordon Taylor, Montreal, faces Don Carrick, Toronto's two-time winner of the title; Stan Leonard, Vancouver, is drawn against Phil Farley, Toronto; T. DIXON TAKES OLYMPIC RACE

Peterboro Boatman Sails Canadian Entry to Victory in Monotype Event

Don Matland and H. E. Wylie, Both of Vancouver, Are Out of Running

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 10.—Reg. Dixon nosed his monotype yacht away from the harbor here yesterday just to show his fellow competitors that he is not out of the running for a 1932 Olympic title.

The Peterboro boatman, who is sailing under Toronto colors, found victory again yesterday, his second in six races so far in the eleven-race series, but the going was tough. The sea was calm. There was no encouraging breeze. Dixon had to work all the way, and he did.

His dash across the finish line in 1.45.53 brought his point total to 39 to stand fourth in the series. The Dutch entry is still in the lead with 55 points, and the English entry is second with 45 points. France, Spain and Germany are tied for third place with 44 points each, which places the Canadian within striking distance of the title. Behind him are the United States with 31 points, Austria, 29; Sweden, 27; South Africa, 15; Italy, 14.

Canada's three other entries lost all hope of victory. Ronald Maitland, Vancouver, skipper of the Santa Maria in the eight-metre class, did not race his only opponent, the United States' Angelita, yesterday, as the Angelita clinched victory Monday and cancelling of yesterday's race gave it the title. Neither did Hal Jones, skipper of the Vancouver Caprice, compete in the six-metre class yesterday, leaving the battle between the Swedish and American entries. H. E. Wylie, Vancouver, skipper of the star class Windsor, brought his craft to third place in yesterday's race, but he is out of the running.

Young Stribling Whips Canadian

Brisbane, Australia, Aug. 10.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon, Ga., heavyweight, battered Jack Renault, Montreal, so mercilessly to-night that the referee halted their scheduled twelve-round bout in the fifth round.

Stribling almost severed one of Renault's ears with his punching and had him retreating from the start.

The fight was the second of Stribling's Australian tour.

BRADMAN PUTS ON 159 RUNS

Famous Australian Cricketer Gives Sterling Exhibition on Edmonton Pitch

McCabe Scores 121 in Bright Display; Touring Players Win 323 to 59

Edmonton, Aug. 10.—Compiling fifty runs in his first fifteen minutes at bat, Don Bradman, famous member of the Australian cricket eleven, which completed a two-day stand here, led his team to a convincing victory over a picked team of Edmonton cricketers today. The final score was Australia 323 runs for three wickets and Edmonton 59, all out.

Bradman joined Carney at the wicket and on the first ball cut a beautiful shot through the slips for four. From then on Bradman took command of the situation and flogged the bowling unmercifully, scoring 159 runs before he retired.

Carney, after scoring a neatly played innings of 27, was smartly stumped by Charlie Field, off Merritt.

McCABE BATS WELL

Stan McCabe was next in and soon started hitting freely, almost stealing the show from his more famous partner, Bradman. McCabe undoubtedly gave the greatest exhibition of hitting ever witnessed here. In one over he hit 38 runs, which included three 6s and five 5s. In the next over in trying to hit for another boundary, he put up a high catch which was neatly taken by Weaver, close to the boundary. McCabe's total of 121 runs was scored within the hour.

BREATH-TAKING FINISH

For the first time in the tenth Olympiad a victorious athlete was greeted with boos instead of cheers by the thousands of spectators who daily have witnessed the track and field contests. Lauri Lehtainen, Finnish distance champion, drew a tremendous chorus of boos as he crossed the finish line in the 5,000-metre run. Spectators and many officials believed that Lehtainen deliberately fouled Ralph Hill, United States, as the two raced down the straightway almost neck and neck. However, Chief Judge Boltz decided that Lehtianen did not willfully interfere with Hill and adjudged him the winner of the race, second place going to Hill. Photo shows the close finish of the grueling contest.

DON SAILS FOR U.S. TO RACE AGAINST GAR WOOD

London, Aug. 10.—Kaye Don, Britain's speedboat racing idol and holder of the new world record on the water, left here to-day for Southampton to sail aboard the liner Majestic for New York on the way to Detroit, where he will race against Gar Wood for the Harmsworth Torphy.

"I am making no promises," he said, "except this—I will do the best I can against Wood's boat, which has a much greater horsepower than my Miss England III."

By promising to do the best he could, Don meant he would try to reach again on the New Detroit course the two-miles-a-minute pace he set when he slashed his shell-cased power plant across Loch Lomond at an average speed of 119.31 miles an hour, with a top mark of 120.5 miles, the fastest any human has traveled over the water.

Jacobs in Good Standing Again

New York, Aug. 10.—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, was reinstated by the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday after a brief suspension following Schmeling's defeat by Jack Sharkey.

Jacobs was set down by the commission for shouting into a microphone at the close of the fight broadcast that he and his warrior had been "robbed." Suitable apologies and discussions at the commission brought an end to the punishment yesterday.

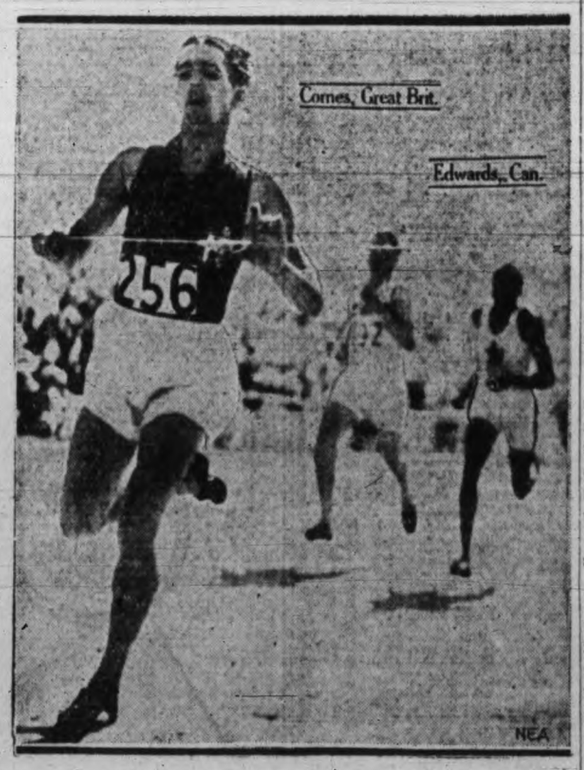
Henri Cochet Is En Route to U.S.

Havre, France, Aug. 10.—Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard to-day sailed for the United States to compete in the tennis championships at Forest Hills September 3 to 10.

WHEN BECALLI SET OLYMPIC RECORD



Here is seen the final of the 1,500-metre race at the Olympic Games at Los Angeles. Luigi Becalli, Italy, established a new Olympic record of 3 minutes, 51.2 seconds. John Cornes, Britan, was second and Phil Edwards, Canada, third.

Victoria Seniors Have Good Chance In Class Events

Following First Round of Veterans' Golf Tournament at Colwood, R. W. Gibson and Fane Sewell Are Still in Class "A," Joe Wilson, Judge Lampman and Percy Criddle in Class "B," H. G. Wilson and F. H. Blashfield in Class "C," and T. S. McPherson and B. S. Heisterman in Class "D"; A. T. Goward, Sole Victorian in Grand Championship, Beaten by Joshua Green

Three Seattle players and one each from Vancouver, New Westminster, Portland, Aberdeen (Wash.) and Lewiston (Idaho) are left in the running for the Grand Championship of the tenth annual Seniors' Northwest Golf Association as a result of first round matches played yesterday morning. First rounds in the Class A, B, C, and D championships and the three flights were also completed during the day.

When A. T. Goward, local veteran, fell at the seventeenth hole to Joshua Green, Seattle, the sole Victorian in the Grand Championship was eliminated and the home town's hopes will have to be cherished for at least another year. Goward was not playing the same brand of golf that carried him to a tie for second place in the qualifying round on Monday, only two strokes behind the medalist, though he made a close game out of it and was defeated by 2 and 1.

But if it was a bad day for Goward and local hopes, it was also a bad day for the medalist, C. H. Harold, Seattle, who was defeated by Col. J. P. Fell, Vancouver, by the same score of 2 and 1 after being three up at the fourth and two up at the tenth. The Canadian player then won three holes in a row and secured the match at the long seventeenth with a birdie three.

L. A. LEWIS WINS

The only other Canadian of the eight in the Grand Championship is L. A. Lewis, New Westminster, who survived a hard match with B. E. Buckmaster, Tacoma, winning by 3 and 1. Fell was to-day playing W. F. Kettenbach, newcomer to the tournament from Lewiston, while Lewis was playing Green; Goward's conqueror, and since both Canadians are in opposite halves of the draw there is a good chance of there not being a repetition of the all-American finals of the last two years.

Six of yesterday's Grand Championship matches were finished on the seventeenth and the other two were decided on the sixteenth. Thus the play was, on the average, exceedingly close.

Neither of last year's finalists are in the "Grand," Judge Rigg, Yakima, not having entered and W. Miller, Seattle, failing to qualify, but J. A. Byerly, Portland, 1930 champion, advanced to the last eight yesterday as the sole standard bearer of the Rose City by virtue of a 2 and 1 victory over E. L. Howard, Seattle.

J. H. Fuller, Aberdeen, whom Byerly beat in the final of 1930, also advanced to the second round and since he is in a different half of the draw there is a possibility the two may meet again in the final. Fuller accounted for James Gillison, Portland, 3 and 2.

In other matches, W. F. Kettenbach, Lewiston, scored a fine victory over D. B. Morgan, Seattle, 3 and 2; A. S. Kerry, Seattle, beat his townsman, Miller Freeman, 2 and 1; and R. R. Frazier, Seattle, also beat his townsman, Capt. W. Langley, 2 and 1.

VICTORIANS ADVANCE

R. W. Gibson, one of the perennials of the seniors' tournament, and Fane Sewell are the two Victorians in the Class A championship for players seventy and over, but unfortunately they have to play one another to-morrow for the right to enter the semi-finals.

In Class B, Victoria is well represented with Joe Wilson, Judge P. S. Lampman and Percy Criddle, while in Class C are H. G. Wilson and F. H. Blashfield. The former two battle each other to-morrow in a second-round match.

Yesterday morning His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor put in an appearance at the club and was welcomed by L. D. Rines, acting secretary. His Honor watched the finish of several of the Grand Championship matches and then went on to Hatley Park for lunch.

Sons of Canada To Oppose Green Mill

In the final game of the regular Senior Baseball League schedule the Sons of Canada and Green Mill will hook up at the Royal Athletic Park to-night at 6.15 o'clock. Although this is the last game on the schedule the teams have several postponed and protested games to play. A win for the Sons to-night will give them a bye in the play-off series by right of their finishing in first place. Should the Green Mill win they will still have a chance of finishing in the first slot.

Wheat Market Renews Upward Climb After Yesterday's Pause

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Encouraged by the vigorous upswing in securities markets plus a substantial quantity of wheat purchased for export, the wheat market renewed its climb to higher levels to-day. Firm throughout, wheat closed with gains of 1⅛ cents in all three futures.

October closed at 61⅛, December at 62⅜ and May at 66⅞.

Strength at Liverpool gave prices their initial boost, and the advance was carried further as speculative support and some export business developed, no figure was placed on the foreign sales, but not more than 500,000 bushels were moved in this direction.

The Liverpool upturn reflected the small amount of wheat on ocean passage to Europe as well as the comparatively light clearances from surplus countries in recent weeks. Germany's wheat crop was officially estimated at 191,000,000 bushels, compared with about 156,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Weather in eastern Canada continues dry and hot, and it is feared that some of the late and quite promising crops will not materialize unless rains come very soon.

Cash wheat and coarse grains experienced more active trade, with prices slightly higher in sympathy with wheat.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Wheat: The wheat market took on a bullish tone to-day with local prices soaring to 1¾ above the close last night, while Chicago at the peak was 2 to 2⅜ cents higher, while there was some export business worked overnight, an improvement of the last week, still the business was not large, probably around 400,000 bushels, but even this amount was not reflected in the local pit. Most of the strength was coming from Chicago, with new York reported as buying in that market, while Chicago was also buying here, local sentiment was friendly and inclined to follow Chicago, although there was considerable profit taking on the extreme bulges. However, the offerings were well absorbed, and the market held strong, and not far from the top most of the day.

Both the United States and Canadian government reports, which are due this afternoon, are expected to be bullish in character, showing crop deterioration in both countries during last month.

The weather has been decidedly warm in the Canadian northwest for some time, and now moisture is lacking in some large and important areas.

In the local cash market there was a good demand for 1, 2 and 3 northern and spreads on these were ⅛ to ¼ better. Other grades were quiet, and spreads unchanged. Liverpool closed 1¼ higher in the cash month, but unchanged in the more deferred month. Country marketings in the west yesterday were 177,000 vs 162,000 bushels year ago.

Threshing is becoming general in southern area, of all three provinces, and new wheat has started to move. Some poor and good yields are being reported. Look for higher market tomorrow if the crop reports are as bullish as anticipated.

Winnipeg futures closed 1⅛ to 1⅞ up.

Oats closed ¼ to ⅜ higher, barley 1⅛ to ¾ higher, rye ½ to ¾ higher, flax 1 to 1¾ higher.

Liverpool due ⅛ to ⅜ higher on Winnipeg.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Wheat: The prospect of a bullish report on spring wheat this afternoon, together with a further advance in stock prices, started renewed buying of wheat to-day with prices selling at the best levels since early in June. As the market worked higher, the trade developed actively and the selling against the offers was well taken, as well as the profit-taking which appeared from time to time. Cotton was also strong and the general advance tendency in commodities, as well as securities, evidently speaks for broad support on all the setbacks. Canadian reports from official quarters indicate considerable deterioration the past week, and judging from northwest advices, the government report may show considerably less wheat than indicated by private estimates. Liverpool reported favorable weather abroad and was easy early, but the close was strong, unchanged to 1¼ higher.

Receipts of wheat in the northwest are not as heavy as expected, and the general tenor of reports from the northwest is that there will be more wheat held back this year than ever known before on a crop of this size. Forecasts are made that the movement during August and September will be much smaller than expected. With the comparatively light receipts of winter wheat this would tend to make a strong cash situation. Flour business has picked up, total sales the past week being the best in months.

We continue friendly to the buying side and suggest purchases on the reactions.

Corn: This market was firm at times, but apparently met big sales on the rallies. However, in view of the discouraging news on corn, including fine crop prospects and sluggish cash demand, the market held fairly firm. Receipts were ninety-two cars estimated. There were rains in the middle west. Weather generally favorable.

Two To Eight Point Gains Seen On New York Stock Exchange

New York, Aug. 10 (Associated Press)—The stock market boiled up afresh to-day, with many leading issues up 2 to 8 points in the second most active day of the year. There were numerous reactions of 1 to 3 from the best in the middle of the afternoon, but the decline was checked when motors were given a whirl in the late dealings. The closing tone was strong, and the turnover about 4,500,000 shares.

Electric Power and Steel production figures were not particularly encouraging, but with further strength of commodities, and continued confidence in autumn pick up, speculators were able to give shares another sharp boost. Eastman's dividend cut was somewhat sharper than expected and the general list sagged as that issue dropped 8 points, but buying of the motors checked the decline. Chrysler rose 3 points to 14⅝; Nash advanced 1⅝ and General Motors gained half as much. Case gained 8, and International Harvester 4. Union Pacific after advancing 5 closed within 2 of the best. American Telephone finished up 4, after an extreme rise of more than 5. American Can and Johns Manville gained about 3. New York Central closed up 2½.

To-day's sales by Logan & Bryan were: Allied Chemical 34,600, American Can 68,600, American Tel. and Tel. 112,500, American Tobacco "B" 16,100, Atchison 33,900, Auburn Motors 38,600, Bethlehem Steel 8,800, J. Pity Parents of Parasitic Children

Dorothy Dix

Thinks You Should Be Pushed Out of Nest

It Is Parents' Obligation to Provide for Children Until They Have Got Start in Life—But After That It Is Up to the Children to Support Themselves and Any Family They May Acquire

WE HEAR a great deal about the possessive parents who wish a sort of perpetual babyhood on their young, and who are never willing for their children to grow up and leave home and get married and stand on their own feet. But what about the parasitic children who expect mamma and papa to hold them by the hand and support them as long as they live, and who will not leave the home nest because it is so soft and warm and costs them nothing to live in?

Obviously, it is the obligation of those who bring children unasked into the world to provide for them when they are little and helpless, to give them a good education and to help them to the best of their ability to get a start in the world. After that it seems equally the duty of the children to clear out and provide for themselves and, in the parlance of the day, give their poor old fathers and mothers a rest and a chance to spend what little money they have on themselves.

This view of the case, however, never strikes the youngsters. They have been so accustomed all of their lives to father and mother sacrificing themselves for them that they do not even perceive that it is done. It simply does not occur to them that their parents are human beings, with natural human desires and impulses. If they visualized them at all, it would be as sublimated goats that glorified in being offered up on the altar of their children.

John and Mamie would fall dead with amazement if they could know that their fathers and mothers cherish deep down in their hearts a dream of what they will do when the children are grown and off on their own. Oh, it is a beautiful castle in Spain that parents build and that they expect to move into when the children are off their hands, but few of them ever enter its portals because they discover that when their children are grown up they are not off their hands. They are still more on them and generally with encumbrances.

Why healthy, husky, intelligent adult young people, who should in common decency and self-respect refrain from still further burdening the parents who have borne them on their backs so long, have no compunction about adding to their weight, nobody knows. But they do. Look at the way youngsters marry without considering the disaster they are bringing upon their fathers and mothers.

A boy and girl in their teens think they are in love and rush off and get married. They have not a nickel in the world. The boy probably has no way of making a living. He is not trained to any trade or profession. The best he can hope for is the meagre wage of the incompetent. Left to themselves, they would assuredly starve, but they do not take that disaster into consideration, for well they know that their parents will not cast them out into the world to fend for themselves and meet singlehanded the fate they have dared.

So the selfish young cubs wish a son-in-law or a daughter-in-law on their parents, and not only add another individual to the household to be supported, but bring in an unwelcome stranger to disturb the peace of the home. Not one of us but could weep with sympathy for the parents when we hear that a young bridal couple have gone to live with them instead of setting up housekeeping for themselves, because well we know that another father and mother have been ruthlessly sacrificed by their children, who would rather have father and mother suffer than wait until they could finance their own marriage.

And consider the women who get divorces and run back home to their parents with a pack of children to be supported. Did you ever hear of a woman stopping to think that since her marriage was her own mistake that it was up to her to bear its consequences, instead of making her poor old father and mother pay for it? Never. Mamie discovers that the man she is married to is not her soulmate, or that he has ceased to thrill her, or perhaps he really has some faults that are hard to be borne with, so she grabs up a divorce and picks up the children and dumps them on her family.

Mother is old and the children worry her, but she has to turn into a nursemaid. Father has to give up his hope of retirement and keep on with his job because he has another house full of children to rear and educate. But it does not occur to Mamie that she is giving her parents a rough deal and that she should have had the courage to have stuck to even an unhappy marriage rather than bring this misfortune on their heads.

Sometimes when you see birds push their young out of the nests when they are grown and then destroy the nests, you think they know more about rearing a family than human beings do.

Adventures of the Sea

XVIII—THE LANDING

It was the island!

At least Captain Thompson declared it to be the same island he had visited years before.

The "Sister Sue" had cast anchor almost a mile from shore. Since the water around the island was shallow, the steamer could not go closer without danger of running aground.

Down went one of the lifeboats

Down went one of the lifeboats. It was to carry those on board to the shore. A rowboat, hardly larger than those used on inland lakes, was fastened to the rear of the lifeboat. It was believed that this rowboat might be useful in making trips from point to point around the coast of the island.

Many a heart beat fast with excitement as the sailors rowed toward shore. What would the island be like? Would the dinosaur bones be there still? What kinds of dinosaur skeletons would be found?

Allen was thinking about the last question especially, and asked Mr. Weston.

"Most of all," replied Uncle Tim, "we want to find a skeleton of the animal known as Atlantosaurus?"

"What was that animal like?"

"I am sorry to say that a complete skeleton has not been found, but in Colorado we have located some of the bones. Those bones indicate that the animal was the largest which ever lived. One of the leg bones was more than eight feet long."

"Are there any of those animals living to-day?" asked Roberta.

"None of them have been found alive," was the reply, "and we are lucky to find even their bones. It appears that the last of them died out several million years ago."

At this instant the stem of the lifeboat touched the island shore. The occupants were soon on the solid ground, with the captain in the lead.

"Just beyond that little mound," said the captain, "we shall find some of the bones if my memory is correct."

Allen ran to the front of the group, and as he came to the top of the mound, he shouted:

"Hurray! I see some bones!"

Horoscope

THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1932

To-day is dominated by strongly benefic aspects, according to astrology. It is preeminently a time for pushing all one's most important interests.

In the early morning the stars do not aid industry, which may be subject to disappointments in the shape of delays.

For the men and women who have enjoyed success there are good signs that seem to promise continued leadership.

According to the stars brilliant statesmen are developing and will soon be recognized in the ranks of the younger generation.

There is an indication of increased patronage of ocean liners all through the autumn which will encourage much travel.

The evening of this day should be auspicious for those who study or who make any intellectual appeal. Orators as well as college heads should benefit at this time.

In the stars are read contending influences that may affect great and small. It is prophesied that events of tremendous importance are soon to take place.

Extremes of life experience will be recognized, it is likely, for there are influences making for concentration of power in government at the same time that the opposite conditions may be produced.

Dictators will increase in number in the nations of the world at the same time that ideas tending toward the socialization of human possessions are prevalent.

Warning has been given repeatedly by astrologers that planets of explosive or revolutionary influence are in places boding ill for those who do not protect the best interests of the people.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of progress and success. A journey may bring about prosperity.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of change and adventure. Many subjects of this sign reach high places by means of extraordinary intellectual gifts.

Robert G. Ingersoll, noted lawyer, was born on this day, 1833. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Gifford Pinchot, 1865, statesman, and Judah P. Benjamin, 1811, noted lawyer.

BOMBS FOUND IN MANILA

Associated Press

Manila, Aug. 10.—Thirty small home-made bombs were found yesterday in and near the walled city section of Manila. Police said they believed the bombs were to have been used by the Tangulan, a secret society, in another demonstration like that of last December, when 200 natives were arrested for violation of the Treason, Insurrection and Sedition Act.

The Army Ordnance Department said the bombs probably would have done little damage.

About 150 of the laborers and farm tenants, members of the Tangulan, arrested in the December demonstration, were sentenced to prison.

ITALY WILL GET WHEAT

Shipment Will Go There Direct From Churchill During Coming Summer

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—A shipment of wheat will go to Italy this summer direct from the port of Churchill, Thomas Harling Sr., head of Thomas Harling & Son, shipping agents, said yesterday evening just before he left for the northern port to superintend the loading of the first two ships of the season, the Pennyworth and Sierentz.

Mr. Harling said the chartering of a vessel for the shipment to Italy indicated the Hudson Bay route was appealing to continental importers as well as to Great Britain. The vessel would carry the first cargo to go direct from Churchill to the Continent. The three vessels already chartered will carry about 750,000 bushels of wheat.

Official of the On-to-the-Bay Association had little comment to make on a Montreal dispatch saying it would be practically impossible to ship dairy products from Churchill this year owing to prohibitive rates. They regarded the statement as indicative of the difficulties encountered in developing the new route.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—Owing to the high rates that would have to be charged, little hope is held out that a refrigeration service will be available out of the port of Churchill, to carry butter and cheese to Great Britain, at least this year, Thomas Harling & Co., steamship agents here, stated Tuesday.

Efforts had been made by western Canadian interests to obtain steamship service from the new northern port for dairy produce, the company stated, but it was felt the rates would be too high to attract shippers. Vessels at present using the Hudson Bay route to carry grain do not have the refrigeration facilities necessary.

Western Canada last year shipped a considerable quantity of butter to the United Kingdom when exports of that commodity were resumed after a lapse of several years. Certain quantities of eggs and poultry are also shipped overseas by the west, the shipment being made via Montreal.

NEW SERVICE TO START IN CHINA

Seattle, Aug. 10. — The motorship Jutlandia, which is scheduled to arrive here late this month, will start the new service of the Chinese-American Steamship Company, which intends to operate three fine vessels between China and North Pacific Coast ports.

LEMOYNE IS FINE SHIP

World's Largest Grain Carrier First Ship Through New Welland Canal

The Ss. Lemoyne, flagship of the Canadian Steamship Lines grain fleet, which was the first ship to pass through the new Welland Canal after the opening Saturday, is the world's largest grain carrier. She holds at the present time the world's record for a single cargo of wheat, 571,885 bushels, and also has carried the world's largest single cargo of coal, 16,538 tons. These records were established in 1929 and 1930 respectively, and still stand.

The Lemoyne was built in Canada at the Canada Steamship Lines shipyards at Midland, Ontario, and launched in 1926. Canadian labor and Canadian materials were used in her construction. Her dimensions are as follows: Length, 633 feet, beam, 70 feet; depth, 29 feet; weight, 10,480 tons.

Previous to this year the Lemoyne and other freighters of her type have been confined to the upper lakes. The opening of the new Welland Canal makes Kingston, Ontario, the Lemoyne's eastern terminal, and her east to west cruising radius more than 1,000 miles.

Capt. Charles Edward Robinson, of Goderich, Ontario, one of the veteran lake masters, is in command of the Lemoyne. Capt. Robinson served on sailing ships from 1893-1898, and since that time has been master in some of the largest lake freighters. He has been master of the Lemoyne since her launching in 1926.

The chief engineer is David A. Sinclair, who first sailed the lakes in 1889.

The Canadian Steamship Lines, owners of the Lemoyne, is the world's largest inland water transportation company. Its fleet of eighteen passenger ships and eighty-five freight steamers operates on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River from Duluth to the Saguenay, a distance of over 2,000 miles. The company also owns valuable passenger and freight terminals, and through its subsidiaries, coal bunkering and handling facilities, two modern grain elevators, shipbuilding yards and repairing plants.

BABY WALRUS ABOARD YACHT

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 10.—With a baby walrus aboard lassoed on the Arctic ice pack, the yacht Stranger, skippered by Capt. E. F. Lewis of Los Angeles, the owner, arrived here yesterday en route to Southern California. The walrus consumes twenty-three cans of evaporated milk daily.

In the menagerie aboard the yacht were two Kodiak brown bear cubs, three black bears and four reindeer fawns, all intended for the Balboa Park Zoo at San Diego.

It is probable the Stranger may call at Victoria on her way to sea to take on supplies and stores for the long ocean trip down the coast to her Southern California destination.

SILK LINER IS WELCOMED

Seattle Greets Ss. President Madison With Cargo Valued at $1,500,000

Seattle, Aug. 10—"Happy Days Are Here Again," read a huge banner extending along the top of a Union Pacific special train of eighteen railway cars shunted into the tracks at Smith Cove Pier 41 yesterday afternoon as the American Mail liner President Madison, laden with the largest shipment of raw silk to be routed via Seattle in three years, arrived from the Far East. The banner, twenty feet long and three feet wide, also read: "Largest shipment of raw silk since 1929. Japan to New York via Seattle. American Mail Line, Union Pacific Railway."

The President Madison brought 4,700 bales of raw silk, of which 4,500 bales were loaded into the Union Pacific special train for transportation to New York at mail train speed. The shipment is valued at more than $1,500,000 and came here via Victoria, B.C.

MET BY DELEGATION

A delegation from the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, including I. F. Dix, president; Nathan Eckstein, chairman of the transportation committee, and Arthur A. Murphy, assistant to the president of the Union Pacific Railway Company, met the President Madison and welcomed the ship to Seattle. Also at the pier were John Cormode, assistant to the vice-president of the American Mail Line, and other officers of the steamship company. Members of the delegation at the pier pointed out that the silk brought by the President Madison in normal times would have been valued at more than $4,000,000.

Recent developments indicate that Seattle soon will be restored to her former rank of first place among Pacific Coast ports in the matter of imports of raw silk into the United States. Prior to 1929, the transcontinental railroads were handling more than 90 per cent of the raw silk imported into this country, amounting to over 500,000 bales annually, with twice as much being handled through the Port of Seattle as any other port on the Pacific.

SILK VALUES DROPPED

With the general fall of commodity prices throughout the world, silk dropped approximately 75 per cent of former values and importers were forced to seek a cheaper medium of transportation by water through the Panama Canal, which, within a period of less than three years, diverted about 85 per cent of the tonnage to the water lines, leaving only a small percentage of the total movement to the rail lines.

Sensing the seriousness of the loss of this business to the Port of Seattle and the rail lines serving Puget Sound, the Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with the Silk Association of America, finally prevailed upon the transcontinental lines last December to reduce their rates $3 per 100 pounds in order to more nearly equalize the lower rates and slower service of the steamship lines operating through the Panama Canal.

SHOWS RAPID UPTURN

Although the return of this traffic to the rail lines for the first six months of 1932 was gradual, figures for July and the first part of August show a rapid upturn. In December, 1931, before the reduction in the rail rates became effective, the rail lines handled only 13.7 per cent of the total imports. During the first six months of this year the railroads handled 30 per cent of the total imports. In July the Port of Seattle alone handled more silk than all the Pacific ports combined for the month of June.

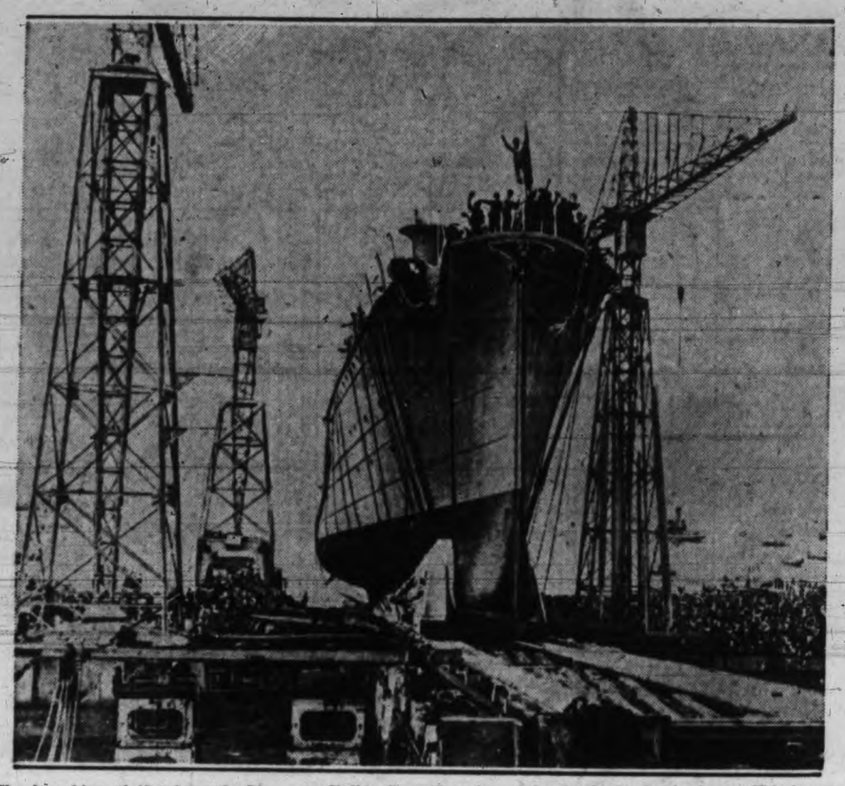
A NEW CRUISER TAKES THE WATER FOR ITALY



The launching of the Armande Diaz, new Italian "secret" cruiser at La Spezia, is shown above. This is one of several craft, which, according to Rector Bywater, British naval expert, Italy had almost completed before the rest of the world knew they were even being considered. Bywater wrote that the "secret ships" include two cruisers, each of 6,742 tons, two 615-ton destroyers and ten other small craft, which are believed to include submarines of a new type. He stated further that this building programme was secretly authorized by the Italian Government before the opening of the Disarmament Conference and work was begun before Admiral Sirianni, the Italian Minister of Marine, announced the undertaking in the Chamber of Deputies.

SIXTY-YEAR-OLD TUG ON BIG SALVAGE JOB

London, Aug. 10.—A stirring record of unwavering hope in the face of overwhelming difficulties lies behind the announcement that a bar of gold worth £20,000 has been recovered from the wreck of the 14,900-ton White Star liner Laurentic, which was torpedoed by a German submarine off Lough Swilly, Donegal, Ireland, in 1917.

Admiralty divers recovered £5,000,000 worth of her gold cargo of £6,000,000 by the end of 1919.

The work of salving the remainder is now being undertaken by a tiny salvage boat with a crew of only ten men and one diver.

The boat is the Estoy, a tug of 101 tons, owned by the Malet Salvage Syndicate, of Creechurch-lane, E.C. She is more than sixty years old.

Her one diver has to contend with enormous odds, for even in fine weather the currents are so strong off Lough Swilly that he can only remain below a few moments.

The boxes in which the gold was packed have been broken, and every tide changes the position of the sand and wreckage in which the loose bars of gold are embedded. From June to September last year the diver worked at every opportunity, but without results, and the operations were then suspended until about six weeks ago.

GEAR DAMAGED

The work has been again at a standstill because some of the ship's gear has been damaged, but the salvage of the £20,000 ingot has put new energy into the crew, and they hope to resume operations in a day or two.

"Unbounded patience must be shown if we are to succeed," one of the crew said. "The gold is cattered about everywhere, and it is necessary to poke about for days to uncover any of it.

"Gales make it impossible for us to work more than a few months each year, and in the intervals of diving much of the progress we make is undone by the currents."

The wreck lies in 120 feet of water, and the sand in which it is embedded has been compressed to the hardness of cement by the swirling waters.

SHIP NEARS CHURCHILL

French Steamer Passed Into Hudson Strait This Morning on Way to New Port

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Bound for Churchill for a cargo of grain, the steamship Sierentz entered Hudson Strait at 6 a.m., E.S.T., to-day, the Department of Marine direction finding station on Resolution Island reported to headquarters here. At 9 o'clock yesterday evening the steamship Pennyworth, bound for the same port for grain, reported herself 900 miles east of Resolution, which is at the eastern mouth of the strait.

Churchill, Man., Aug. 10.—The French steamship Sierentz, in ballast, bound for this port to load grain, is expected to dock here to-morrow—one day later than scheduled. The vessel entered Hudson strait this morning, according to radio reports received here. The Sierentz, which was scheduled to arrive here to-day, will load 250,000 bushels of wheat.

The Ss. Pennyworth, loaded with cargo taken on at Newcastle and Antwerp, is due to reach here to-morrow, but it is expected she will arrive ahead of schedule. The Pennyworth is carrying a mixed cargo, including large consignments of liquor for the Manitoba and Saskatchewan liquor commissions, crockery and oil. On her return voyage she will carry 250,000 bushels of wheat.

Fifteen vessels are expected to dock here within the next couple of months to carry out grain.

WHITE ROCK PARTY HERE

Six hundred summer residents of White Rock and Crescent resorts on the Pacific Highway between Vancouver and Blaine arrived in Victoria shortly after noon to-day to spend several hours here. They came over on the Ss. Lady Alexandra of the Union Steamship Company of Vancouver, which sailed from White Rock at 8.30 o'clock this morning.

The steamer came into the inner harbor and tied up at the Island Tug and Barge Company's wharf at 12.30 o'clock. Immediately the passengers disembarked to visit friends here or to take sightseeing drives about the city. The Lady Alexandra was scheduled to sail on her return to the mainland at 5 o'clock. It is the second time this year she has been here. About three weeks ago she came over with a large party of excursionists.

G. A. Rushton, assistant traffic manager of the Union Steamship Company, with offices in Vancouver, was a passenger arriving on the Lady Alexandra to-day. Returning with him this evening will be Mrs. Rushton and Miss E. Marsden of England, who have been spending a holiday in Victoria as guests at the Glenshiel Hotel.

This morning the Ss. Princess Patricia took a party of 150 Victorians on an excursion to Mayne Island, where the annual Fall Exhibition is being held. After several hours on the island the party will return to Victoria, the "Pat" being scheduled to arrive here about 10 o'clock this evening.

NIAGARA DUE ON THURSDAY

Sir Frederick Menzies of London Among Passengers To-morrow From Australia

Major-General Sir Frederick N. Kay Menzies, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., V.D., medical officer of health in charge of the London County Council medical service, on his way home after a tour through Australia and New Zealand, will be among the eighty-seven passengers arriving here to-morrow evening aboard the Canadian Australasian liner Niagara.

The Niagara, Capt. T. V. Hill, is due at the William Head quarantine station to-morrow evening, between 9 and 10 o'clock, according to wireless information received from the ship this morning. She is expected to reach Vancouver first thing Friday morning. She is coming in from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu.

Sir Frederick Menzies is one of England's outstanding public health officials and will make a tour of Canada, visiting Lake Louise, Banff and other places in the Dominion. It is possible he may disembark here and make a short visit before proceeding to Vancouver. At the present time he hopes to make connections with the liner Empress of Britain, sailing from Quebec for England, September 3.

Returning to her southern ports on August 17, the Niagara will have as passengers Sir Granville Ryrie, late High Commissioner for Australia in London, and Hon. A. C.
